Quincy Art Association Artist Showcase: Jean Green

I have always been interested in drawing, design and exploring various mediums. As a child in elementary school, I liked to design clothing on my drawings of people. I started taking art courses in high school and continued painting while in college. When I lived in New York City, I studied at The School of Visual Arts.

When I moved to Boston, I studied sculpture and painting at the Boston Center for Adult Education. It was my father, a marble carver who inspired me to try sculpture.

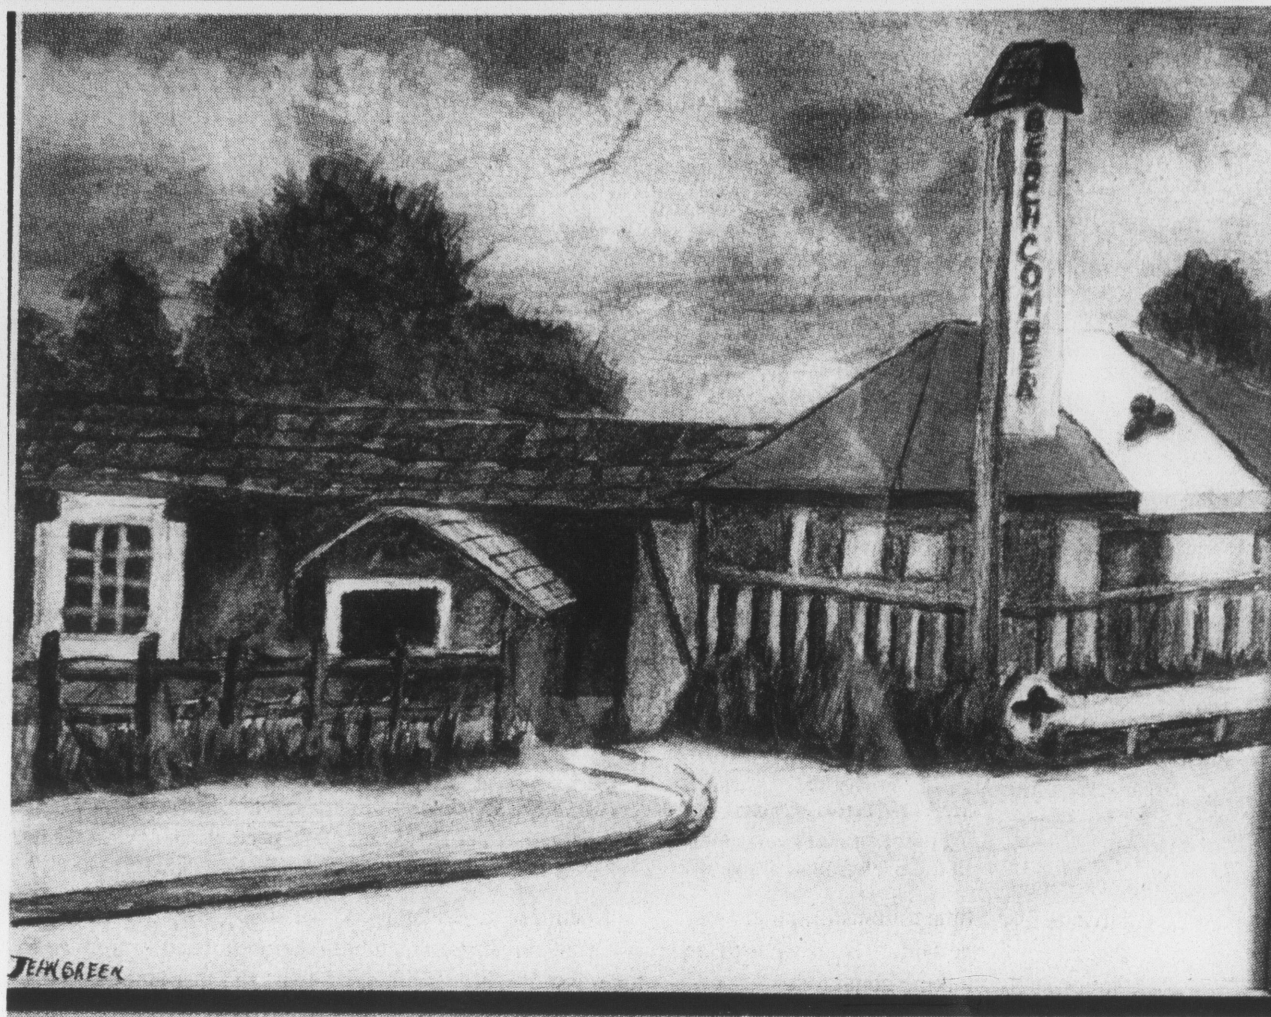

I have worked in many mediums. I now primarily work in watercolor. For variety, this has led me to the use of seashells and paints within a frame. I am interested in the parable stories of Jesus. This has led me to interpret in paint the parable of the Good Samaritan, one of my favorite parables.

I have a studio in my house where I like to work and listen to old music tapes on a boom box. I also like to paint on location. One of my favorite artists is Monet. I would also like to say how amazed I was at the play of light in Van Gogh's "Potato Eaters". I also was very impressed with the atmospheric color of Turner's work at the Tate Art Museum in London. I find that it is helpful to be a part of both a formal and informal art group. The Quincy Art Association offers classes, demonstrations, and opportunities to display and sell your work. I have a close group of trusted artist friends. We meet regularly and support, assist and inspire one another in our work. The enclosed picture was taken in one of my favorite places, behind Ida's Restaurant in the North End. I have done several paintings of this area.

The enclosed painting of the Beachcomber is a special place for me. I used to go to concerts there and to listen to Sid Walsh sing "Southie". I also made a very important decision there. My husband and I decided to get married while there, as did my sister and her husband. We were married in a double wedding ceremony.

I hope this painting of the Beachcomber brings back happy memories for so many people who have enjoyed visiting this classic destination.

Three New Developments Seen In Quincy Center

Buildings Would Feature Nearly 600 Residential Units, Restaurant Space, Performing Arts Center

By SCOTT JACKSON

Mayor Thomas Koch recently unveiled plans for three new buildings – containing nearly 600 residential units, restaurant space and a performing arts center – that he said would transform the section of Quincy Center between Hancock Street and Burgin Parkway.

Koch announced plans for the new buildings at a City Hall press conference on June 17, joined by Sam Slater and Joey Arcari, the developers behind the projects.

During his press conference in the Great Hall of the James R. McIntyre Center (old City Hall), Koch said much of the redevelopment in Quincy Center to date has taken place in the area of east of Hancock Street, such as the Chestnut Place, West of Chestnut and Nova Residences buildings. The new proposed buildings would help transform the area to the west of Hancock Street, the mayor stated.

"It is time for that side of Hancock Street over to Burgin to be developed. It is time to transform that area," he said. "That is what we are talking about today."

The three proposed buildings represent private investments of $300 million into Quincy Center, the mayor said, and will include 800,000 square feet of new development. The projects will also generate $2 million in new tax revenue each year.

Koch said he understood some of his critics might take issue with additional development in Quincy Center, but noted there is a shortage of housing in the Boston area.

"The economy of Boston is heavily based on education and medical, and a lot of young people come to this region in need of a place to live, and that is a challenge right now. We are helping to meet that demand," the mayor said.

"This creates new vitality, new vibrancy. It creates new jobs, it creates new taxes. And, it is on the spine of the tracks – we are right by the Quincy Center Red Line station...it checks a number of the boxes off, why it makes perfect sense.

"This is where we want density, this is where we want height, this is the center of commerce in our city. This isn't in the middle of a neighborhood."

Slater's firm, Tremont Asset Management, would develop two of the buildings.

The first building would be located at 1469 Hancock St., presently home to the Adams Arcade. Slater is

Squantum Road Race Set For July 3

The Squantum Road Race, a tradition held annually as part of the 4th of July festivities in Squantum, will be held Saturday, July 3rd.

Registration will begin at 9:30 a.m. at the Squantum Fire Station located at 50 Huckins Ave., North Quincy. The race will kick off at 10 a.m.

Registration is $20 for adults, and kids age 10 and under run for free.

State Rep. Bruce Ayers, who has sponsored the Squantum Road Race for over 20 years, said he's excited for the race to be held once again after it was canceled in 2020 due to the CO-VID-19 pandemic.

"It's a great community event that has become a real Squantum tradition," Ayers said. "I'm looking forward to seeing all the families and runners who come out to support the road race, which is run in memory of long-time Squantum community activist Frank Buckley."

T-shirts will be provided as supplies last, and trophies will be presented to first and second place winners in each age category. Medals will be presented to every child who runs. All proceeds go to the Squantum 4th of July Parade.

Quincy Fire Department Reminder: Open Burning Not Allowed In Quincy

Open burning is NOT allowed in the City of Quincy. This includes, but is not limited to: Burning leaves or brush piles, garbage, tires or rubber products, paint or used oil, plastic, and any household material that can be recycled.

Open Burning means burning under such conditions that the products of combustion are emitted directly into the ambient air space.

The Department of Environmental Protection (Mass DEP) and the Quincy Fire Department do NOT allow open burning for public health and safety reasons. Open burning pollutes the air and can make it difficult for people with respiratory problems to breathe. Open burning can pose smoke and odor nuisances to nearby residents in densely populated areas and can also pose a risk when it is not adequately controlled.

Outdoor Cooking Appliances, Outdoor Patio and Space Heaters, Outdoor Decorative Heating Appliances and Outdoor Fireplaces

To protect the citizens of Quincy from the effects of accidental fire due to improperly placed, misused, malfunctioning, or unattended outdoor cooking and heating appliances that may lead to accidental injury, death or property damage, it is PROHIBITED within the City of Quincy to use any outdoor patio or space heater, decorative heating appliance such as a chimineas, fire pit or outdoor fireplace using solid fuel including charcoal, wood, fuel pellets or any non-gaseous fuel.

Outdoor patio or space heaters and decorative heating appliances such as chimineas, fire pits and outdoor fireplaces that are fueled by Natural Gas or LP-GAS using a refillable tank or permanently installed ARE allowed for use within the City of Quincy provided the appliance is listed or labeled by a recognized product testing organization. Where permanent, such installation shall be installed and permitted through the Inspectional Services Department (ISD) of the City of Quincy and installed by a licensed installer in accordance with all applicable codes and reference standards.

LP-Gas appliances whether permanent piped or refillable, all installations, clearances, storage and use shall be according to manufacturer's specifications and 527 CMR.

Warm Weather Fire Safety

By TOM LYONS
Retired Captain
Quincy Fire Department

Here's a repeat subject while timely considering the warmer weather. Open burning of leaves, vegetation, wood, paper products and any combustible for that matter, is not allowed within the city. Considering the proximity of houses to each other within this community, the nuisance factor of smoke, and the perceived threat of fire to abutters, it is in my opinion a sound policy.

Fire prevention must at times draw a line between what is reasonable behavior and what behavior can be threatening to the community overall. That line is not always the easiest to define. The decision long ago to prohibit outside burning within this city has been one of those decisions, and over years, the prohibition has served this community well.

Meanwhile, there are those devices that don't really fit under the umbrella of open burning, and yet involve flame and the outdoors, for instance tiki torch use. Although not prohibited, they must be used with care and safety in mind. Their use on a combustible deck is not recommended by this department while doing so 10' away from a building, securely placed within the ground while not left unattended is. Care must be taken to make certain that they are a safe distance from dry, combustible vegetation, while not posing a threat to any combustible exposure.

If the fire department is called to an address and determines that their use poses a hazard; he will order them to be extinguished. As previously mentioned, the close proximity of houses to each other can be a consideration while a fire officer's judgment is influenced by the factors at a specific location

Table candles do not typically fall within the open burning category as well while we ask that they not be left unattended, and be used within a one foot circle of safety or more, giving them ample free space from combustibles that can come in contact with the flame.

Use them out of reach of children and pets; burn them on a noncombustible surface such as a ceramic saucer or plate.

Portable outdoor fireplaces and chimeneas are surfacing while we clearly place them within the open burning category and therefore their use is prohibited. We will receive an occasional call asking for our opinion while it is conveyed that they have been used on combustible decks. We in turn inform the caller that not only is it inadvisable to use them on a combustible deck; we prohibit their use entirely.

Much has been written regarding propane and charcoal grill use while little detail will be added here. Suffice it to say, we do prefer that they not be left unattended, and used at least 10 feet away from a building at ground level. We have a flyer concerning this policy, which you are welcome to request by contacting the fire prevention bureau.

Kindly adhere to both our prohibitions and recommendations while you are always welcome to contact us for any further clarification. Meanwhile we wish you a safe summer with much enjoyment.

The Quincy Fire Department thanks retired Captain Lyons for his continued support in helping educate others on fire safety.

Cynthia Sierra Named Commonwealth Heroine

The Massachusetts Commission on the Status of Women (MCSW) invited legislators to nominate a woman in their district to the Commonwealth Heroine Class of 2021.

Quincy legislators state Sen. John Keenan and state Rep. Bruce Ayers nominated Cynthia Sierra, the chief executive officer of Manet Community Health Center. Manet is based in Quincy but provides services and programs for infants, children, adolescents, adults, and seniors throughout the South Shore.

The Commonwealth Heroines are women who do not make the news, but make a difference. They perform unheralded acts on a daily basis that make homes, neighborhoods, cities, and towns better places to live. Cynthia Sierra personifies the qualities of innovativeness and compassion that are so common amongst Commonwealth Heroines.

"At the outset of the pandemic, Cynthia quickly and efficiently prepared Manet to lead," Keenan said. "Beyond providing care and services to the Manet community, she partnered with the City of Quincy to provide a comprehensive testing program, with an early focus on testing the City's homeless population. Her leadership led to the quick and efficient vaccination of Quincy's first responders, and then to successful testing and vaccine distribution all across the South Shore." Keenan also represents the Town of Abington, where Sierra resides.

When asked why he nominated Sierra, Ayers said, "As the CEO of Manet Community Health Center, Cynthia is a relentless advocate for local health organizations, believing that they hold the key to happier and healthier communities. Under her leadership, Manet has seen exponential growth in its programs and in its reach, providing outstanding care to their patients. Cynthia has helped create stronger, healthier communities across Massachusetts, and for that we are proud to recognize her as our 2021 nominee."

The Massachusetts Commission on the Status of Women virtually celebrated the 18th annual Commonwealth Heroines Class of 2021 June 23 at noon with a video presentation. MCSW livestreamed the celebration on its Facebook page.

"I am incredibly honored to be nominated for such a meaningful distinction from MCSW," said Sierra said. "I humbly accept on behalf of Manet and the remarkable staff I have the great pleasure and privilege of leading. Together, we work to ensure that our health center is welcoming and responsive to the needs of our patients and the communities we serve. Also instrumental in this work are the cooperation among our community partners and support from our local, state and federal leaders, including Senator Keenan and Representative Ayers."

Commonwealth Heroines will receive a Heroine Package via mail that contains a letter of notification of the award, a printed copy of the program book, and a certificate to recognize their work within the community.

The Massachusetts Commission on the Status of Women is an independent state agency that was legislatively created in 1998 to advance women of the Commonwealth to full equality in all areas of life and to promote their rights and opportunities.

Scenes From Yesterday

THE M. E. CHURCH ~ ~ ATLANTIC, MASS.

THIS IS A 1927 real photo postcard view of the Methodist Episcopal Church on East Squantum Street in Atlantic. The church had just been built on land that was the site of the old Quincy Elementary School. On the right was the pastor's home and just out of sight next to it was the original wooden church that later became the Masonic Hall. The Methodist congregation merged with other Quincy churches in the 1980s and this building was used as a Sikh Temple for a few years until it was converted into condominiums. In the distant left can be seen the old Atlantic fire station with the tower and beyond that the old Hancock Paint factory. Under construction at the time of this photo was the center section of today's North Quincy High School behind the church. The east wing of the high school was built in 1931 and today would block the view of the left..

THE ALTRUSA INTERNATIONAL Club of Greater Quincy recently presented books to the Snug Harbor Community School fifth-grade class, as a promotion gift. Each student received a copy of "The Seven Wonders of Sassafra Springs" by Betty G. Birney. The story is about finding the good, the curious and the special within one's own community. Five copies of the new graphic novel "New Kid" by Jerry Craft were also presented so that each fifth-grade teacher and classroom library would have a copy. Flag Day Parade, Fireworks And A City Coming Together

The past 16 months have been a whirlwind. All across the country, so many traditions and celebrations have been altered, modified or eliminated—it makes me even more grateful to live, and raise my family, in a city as great as Quincy.

As the father of two, me and my family have been attending the Flag Day parade for the past 16 years—the last 10 years we have walked in the parade with Houghs Neck T-Ball, Quincy Youth Lacrosse or Quincy Youth Soccer. In all those year, I can't recall a better, more special parade than we did this weekend. The energy and the excitement was profound and the activity along the way felt like a resurgence for an entire community. The businesses and restaurants we passed had people sitting up and clapping as we went by. The cheers put a smile on everyone's face and sent a clear message—Quincy is leading the charge for a full recovery.

When we turned the corner from Hancock Street to Southern Artery—and saw the enormous American Flag straddling the Quincy fire trucks—the feeling of pride and joy that captured every person in our group was measurable. "Wow!" was the word on everyone's mind. It was a special moment filled with sincere emotion and happiness and I was so proud to be a part of this amazing event.

The fireworks that followed the parade were something to behold. Friends and families gathered together in backyards, parks and beaches—all across the city—to see the spectacular fireworks display that put an exclamation mark on the celebration of Flag Day and signaled the resurgence of our great city.

My hat is off to the parade committee and all the workers and volunteers who went the extra mile to make the Flag Day parade possible. A very special thanks to Mayor Koch for his commitment to bringing back a tradition that we'll never take for granted again and for leading our great city in a year where there was no compass.

Weld Signs College, Golf Course Petitions

Gov. William Weld has signed into law two home rule petitions that will pave the way for a new system of government at Quincy College and construction of a golf course/recreational facility at the former landfill site in West Quincy.

Mayor James A. Sheets made the announcement after receiving verification from Weld's office. The two petitions were passed by the city council in March and by the state legislature on June 21. Sheets said he was thrilled with the news. His home rule petition for Quincy College calls for the college to be governed by a new independent board of trustees.

The other home rule petition will allow the city to enter into a lease agreement of up to 50 years with Quarry Hills Associates for the construction of a golf course recreation complex to be maintained by the developers but owned by the city.

PAY RAISES FOR CITY OFFICIALS APPROVED

The City Council has approved pay raises ranging from 2 to 14 percent for department heads and other top full-time city officials.

The salary increases are the first in five years for Mayor Sheets and city councillors and the first significant raises in five years for 50 department heads and other non-union employees.

The mayor's salary is going up 12 percent from $55,587 to $62,500 per year while city councillors' pay will rise 25% to $12,607. The raises for the mayor and city councillors become effective on Jan. 1, 1995.

12 Seniors Graduate The Woodward School

Twelve Woodward School seniors and members of their families gathered for commencement June 5 at Quincy's "Church of the Presidents" to celebrate the accomplishments of the students' high school years.

The Woodward School located in historic Quincy Center is an independent, secular, all-girls school serving grades 6-12. With a classical prep-school curriculum the school has been educating and empowering young women to be leaders and exemplary citizens for over 125 years.

Waiting outside for the ceremony to begin, the students hugged each other, laughed, and shed tears as they shared memories and plans.

As the salutatorian, in Nia Holloman's speech she referred to Frank Sinatra's song, "My Way," acknowledging each graduate's career goal.

"Today we are afflicted with several major issues," Holloman said. "It may seem like we've once more bit off more than we can chew, but I'm confident we will continue to meet those challenges our way." She shared how each of the graduates was preparing to address global challenges by choosing specific majors: business, computer science, health care, international studies, and public policy.

"This class of 2021 will make the world a better place than it was the day before," Holloman added.

"Lean on Me" by Bill Withers was sung by graduate Swetha Vissapragada

Jordan Cedrone, as valedictorian, spoke to the graduates about "this moment is our time" and quoted author Stephanie Meyers.

"This isn't the time to make hard and fast decisions, this is the time to make mistakes. Take the wrong train and get stuck somewhere. Fall in love - a lot. Major in philosophy because there is no way to make a career out of that. Change your mind and change it again because nothing's permanent. So make as many mistakes as you can."

"This is our opportunity to explore within ourselves, let's not waste it," Cedrone said.

Manet Community Health Center's June Bloom Virtual Fundraiser Raises $102,000

Manet Community Health Center's June Bloom fundraiser, which streamed live on June 3, raised $102,000 to help support the health center's broad ranging programs and services across its growing service area that includes Quincy, Hull, Taunton and, very soon, Attleboro.

"We simply could not do what we do without the incredible kindness and generosity of our sponsors and donors. We thank each and every one of them," said Manet Chief Executive Officer Cynthia Sierra. "We appreciate everyone who took the time to join us and are also grateful for the opportunity to highlight some of the work that we've accomplished this past year and the indelible impact that this work, our providers and staff have on our patients' lives. And I would be remiss if I did not acknowledge our fantastic event planning committee, chaired by Helen Shiner and including Sean Curry, Dr. Eric Cohen, Patty Dillane, Phyllis Dohanian, John Galluzzo, Grace McAuliffe, Joseph Reardon, Karen Ward and Tramaine Weekes."

The 45-minute program was hosted by Mark Carey of Muddhouse Media, and featured live guests, including Sierra and event chairperson Helen Shiner, and video segments with gardening tips from Sean Curry of Curry Hardware, patient testimonials and prize drawings.

Donations and sponsorships also provide the means for Manet to expand and offer new services. For example, this summer, Manet will expand our space in Taunton, and later this year this will also include a Vision Care Center in Taunton and open a new practice location in Downtown Attleboro, and begin construction of a radiology suite in North Quincy.

Top sponsors included Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts, Boston Medical Center/Boston Medical Center HealthNet Plan and FoxRock Properties, Arbella Insurance Foundation, Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., Brave River Solutions, Codman Square Health Center, Dr. Eric & Betsy Cohen, Griffin Maintenance Services, Inc., Mayor Tom Koch, Massachusetts League of CHCs, South Shore Bank, South Shore Health, and Yozell Associates.

QATV Wins Hometown Video Awards

Quincy Access Television (QATV) recently received two 2021 Hometown Media Awards from the Alliance for Community Media Foundation.

The awards program was established to honor and promote community media, community radio, and local cable programs that are distributed on Public, Educational and Governmental (PEG) access cable television channels, such as QATV-8 and QATV-9 in Quincy.

QATV and the Theatre for Social Justice Program at Eastern Nazarene College won the top award in the Audio Programming category for the production of the Sherlock Holmes Radio Drama, "The Adventure of the Tolling Bell." Part of a four-part drama series, students in the Theatre for Social Justice Program performed the audio program in the QATV studio, under the direction of professor Allison Tucker and production manager professor Tara Brooke Watkins. Post-production was performed by QATV and the programs were shown on QATV-8, streamed at QATV.org/ENCRadioDrama and as an Eastern Nazarene College podcast.

QATV Government Access Coordinator Mark Crosby and Quincy DPW Waste and Recycling Manager John Sullivan took home first place in the experimental category for a public service announcement entitled "The Recycle Zone." The PSA, based off Rod Serling's "The Twilight Zone," talks about the changes in what can and can't be recycled and how residents should stay up to date on the changes. The win is the second award Crosby and Sullivan have taken home for "The Recycle Zone," having won first place in the Mass. Creator Awards earlier this year.

"We're thrilled these programs were recognized by our peers in community media, not only for the quality of the production, but for the entertainment and information they offer to Quincy residents," said QATV Executive Director Jonathan Caliri. "We're especially excited to share these awards with great community partners in Eastern Nazarene College and the Quincy DPW. QATV is happy that many of our programs are produced with Quincy's great organizations and outstanding City departments, and these two awards are emblematic of the many collaborations we have," Caliri said.

Each year, nearly one thousand entries are submitted. These entries, or programs, are submitted and evaluated on several factors resulting in over 100 award winners. A panel of judges from the industry evaluate the entries. Awards are presented to the most creative programs that address community needs, develop diverse community involvement, challenge conventional commercial television formats and move viewers to experience television in a different way.

"The Hometown Media Awards celebrate both the excellence of work and the diversity of media that appears on community channels being produced around the country. The ACM Foundation is proud of their achievement and of how they represent their communities in their work," said Mike Wassenaar, president and CEO, Alliance for Community Media.

For more information about QATV, visit www.QATV.org or call 617-376-1440.

Managing Insects On Vegetables and Herbs

By MELINDA MYERS

Homegrown fresh vegetables not only taste better; they are more nutritious. Plus, you can control what products are applied to the plants to control insect pests and disease.

The first steps to growing a productive vegetable garden and protecting your harvest begin with proper planning and care.

Select the most disease-resistant varieties available when planning your garden.

Then plant them in properly prepared soil with the amount of sunlight they require. Provide the necessary ongoing care and your plants will be healthier and better able to tolerate pest problems.

Even when you do everything right; problems can still arise. It's just a part of gardening.

Further reduce the risk with regular visits to the garden. Check along the stems and under the leaves for any clues that insect pests have moved into your garden. It is much easier to manage small populations of harmful pests than after they have had time to rapidly reproduce.

At the same time, look for lady beetles, green lace wings and other good guys that eat a variety of garden pests. Leaving a few pests to attract these good guys is often an easy, yet effective way to manage the harmful ones.

Enlist the help of songbirds by attracting them with birdbaths and feeders. Many birds supplement their diets with insect protein. Just protect young seedlings as many birds also like fresh greens.

If you need to lend nature a hand, remove small populations of insects by hand or use a strong blast of water to knock aphids and mites off plants. This is often enough to manage the damage and minimize their impact on your garden harvest.

Barriers of floating row covers can keep cabbage worms, onion maggots, Japanese beetles, and some other insects from laying eggs on their favorite plants. Cover the plants with the fabric at planting, anchor the edges and leave enough slack for plants to grow. Uncover flowering plants as soon as blossoms appear if bees are needed for pollination.

Set out yellow bowls filled with soapy water. The yellow attracts aphids and some other harmful pests. The insects gravitate toward the yellow, then crash into the soapy water and die.

If the problem insects are winning the battle, you may be tempted to reach for chemical controls. Instead, look for the Organic Materials Review Institute (OMRI) certification on product labels. This independent non-profit organization reviews products for use in organic gardens, production, and processing.

Summit Year-Round Spray Oil (SummitResponsibleSolutions.com) is an OMRI-certified product labeled for use on fruits and vegetables as well as ornamentals. It controls mites, aphids, thrips, and other insects and can be applied right up to the day of harvest.

As always, read and follow label directions for any organic, natural, or synthetic chemical used. Heeding label directions ensures safe application and effective control.

By working with nature and investing some time and creativity you can safely minimize insect problems and maximize your garden's harvest.

Pork Patties Over Rice

By MARIE

Sometimes the simplest recipe ends up to be the best. Each week that is what I try to do is create a simple, tasty recipe that most of you will want to try.

Today's recipe has only four ingredients but all together, once you see it and taste it, it looks like it took much more time.

Directions and Ingredients:

- 1 pound of bulk pork
- 2 eggs slightly beaten
- 1 cup corn flakes, rolled coarsely
- 3 tablespoons vegetable oil

Rice (however much you need)

Shape pork into 8 patties about one-half inch thick.

Dip patties into egg and then roll into corn flakes.

Pan fry in heated oil slowly, turning so they are browned well on both sides.

Cook rice according to directions, drain and then add marinara sauce and sprinkle with parmesan cheese.

Place pork patties on top of rice.

Or cook your favorite pasta and add homemade or jarred marinara sauce if you prefer pasta to rice.

Mexican Style Quinoa

By SUZIE

Many times I hear from patients that they do not like quinoa. When we start discussing it, it usually, if not always, ends up that they simply boil it in water and plop it on a plate!

You wouldn't serve rice or pasta that way and expect it to taste good.

Here is a great and easy recipe for a quinoa dish that everybody loves. It is flavorful and packed with nutrients.

Quinoa is an ancient grain of the Peruvians who used the grain for stamina and energy. It is very easily digested as well.

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1 cup uncooked quinoa, rinsed well and drained (it must be rinsed to avoid a bitter taste)
- 1 medium onion, chopped

- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 1 red pepper, chopped
- 1 can tomato sauce (8 oz)
- 2 1/2 cups broth (I use chicken or vegetable)
- 2 tsp chili powder
- 1 tsp cumin
- sea salt
- fresh cilantro, avocado, salsa for topping

Simply sauté onion, pepper, and garlic in a saucepan until fragrant. Add quinoa and toss to coat for a few minutes. Now add the broth, tomato sauce, and dried herbs.

Stir, cover, and simmer until liquid is absorbed, about 15 minutes.

Season to taste with sea salt and toss with cilantro.

Serve with sliced avocado and salsa. Enjoy!

Chase Opens Branch In North Quincy

JPMorgan Chase has opened its first retail branch in Quincy located at 315 Hancock St. in North Quincy.

Led by branch manager Aaron Lei along with a staff of eight bankers who live locally, the new branch is part of the North Quincy MBTA redevelopment. The move into Quincy is part of Chase's expansion in Massachusetts that began in 2018 and will continue with the opening of 50 total branches over the next few years around the South Shore, Boston and North Shore.

"Quincy is a city with a rich history and this newest branch will serve as another economic hub for our neighbors," said Aaron Lei, Chase Branch Manager, North Quincy. "We look forward to building new relationships and helping our customers during life's most important moments, like opening their first savings account, buying their first home, planning for retirement, and more."

The North Quincy branch marks the 200th branch Chase has opened nationally since 2018. Two years ago the firm announced plans to open 400 branches in brand new markets, making Chase the first bank to operate in all 48 contiguous states, and North Quincy marks the half way point toward that goal.

The new branch was designed to create a casual and relevant space for the community. There are various meeting spaces such as casual booths, meeting pods, an open living room, and a digital access bar. The branch will also host regular Chase Chats which are financial health workshops focusing on topics like financial fitness, budgeting and saving, and paths to homeownership.

Richard, Geraldine Storella Educational Trust Awards $20,000 In Scholarships

The Richard and Geraldine Storella Educational Trust announces its 2021 award recipients.

Hannah Murphy was awarded $10,000. She will be attending Bridgewater State University as a political science major.

Charles Codner was awarded $5,000. He will be attending Georgia Institute of Technology as a chemical engineering major.

Courtney O'Brien was awarded $5,000. She will be attending UMass Boston as a forensic criminology major.

Richard and Geraldine Storella established the Educational Trust Scholarship with the vision that hard-working students with connections to their Italian heritage would be able to use the award toward furthering their educational endeavors.

Mr. Storella wanted this scholarship to honor his wife Geraldine (Gerry) and this Trust will do so for many years to come.

Gerry Storella was born in Quincy and attended Quincy High (class of 1955). She was the captain of the cheerleading squad and years later, became the first female member of the QHS Hall of Fame in 1955 as the class valedictorian. She attended Boston University College of Business Administration where she also became a cheerleader for the Terriers.

Richard and Gerry were married for 53 years. Together they were involved in the Quincy community throughout their lives. Richard coached Quincy Youth Hockey and Gerry joined right alongside him as the Secretary for the Board of Quincy Youth Hockey. They were both members of the Granite Links Golf Club and Gerry was a board member of the Thomas Crane Friends of the Library and participated in many of the events that the Library sponsored. Gerry also believed in, and followed the wonderful history of Quincy, and as such, became an active member of the Quincy Historical Society.

Gerry wanted the opportunity to pass on to others what she learned from her Quincy education, her Quincy neighbors, and her Quincy upbringing. Through this scholarship, her dream has come true.

The Board Members of the Richard and Geraldine Storella Educational Trust are Lawrence Taglieri, principal of Quincy High School; Dr. Brian Jolley and his sister Denise Martucci, family friends of Mr. and Mrs. Storella; Leo Keka, owner of Alba Restaurant; and Anthony S. Falco, Esq., trustee of the Trust.

Social Security Matters Ask Rusty: Loophole That May Potentially Benefit A Survivor?

By RUSSELL GLOOR
National Social Security Advisor
At the AMAC Foundation, The Non-Profit Arm
Of The Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: When my father passed away and we went to update my mother's Social Security benefits, a question arose that I was confused by. We were asked "Do you want to claim just your father's benefit (which was larger) or claim my mother's benefit and the difference between the two?" Either way it would come to the same amount. Is there a reason to claim one way over the other? Perhaps a caveat that we are unaware of? Is there a loophole that we are missing that may potentially benefit the survivor? We are soon to face this question again as my father-in-law is very ill. Signed: Curious

Dear Curious: Well, they are basically the same amount but there is a nuance in the rules that many survivors aren't aware of. Here's why Social Security asked that question: It is possible for a surviving spouse to claim only the survivor benefit and defer claiming their own SS benefit until a later age if their personal benefit would be more than the survivor benefit would be. A survivor benefit reaches maximum at the survivor's full retirement age, but their personal SS benefit can grow until they are 70 years old. Thus, claiming the survivor benefit (only) first, and allowing their personal benefit to grow up to age 70 is often a wise move. Doing so allows someone to collect survivor benefits upon becoming a widow(er), while still maximizing their personal benefit. When later claimed, the higher personal benefit will replace the smaller survivor benefit. Of course, this option only makes sense if one's personal benefit would later be more than their survivor benefit.

Social Security is required to ask this question because the person may be eligible for a higher benefit on their own if they wait until a later age to claim it, but the "survivor benefit only" option is useful only if the survivor has not yet reached 70 years of age. After age 70 they would always take whichever benefit is higher. In most cases SS pays the person's own benefit first and then a "boost" to bring the payment up to the higher amount due as a survivor. But the choice to claim the survivor benefit only is an option if the survivor has not yet reached 70 and if their own benefit could later be more than their survivor benefit.

So, the question is - which option did your mother choose? And is your mother-in-law under age 70? If your mother's own benefit at age 70 would not have been higher than her survivor benefit from your father, then it doesn't matter which way it was recorded. And if your mother-in-law is over age 70, it doesn't matter either. But if not and either personal benefit at age 70 would be more than their earlier survivor benefit, then opting for the survivor benefit only and waiting to claim their own later would be (or have been) a better choice.

MassDOT Underscores Importance Of Avoiding Distracted Driving

The Massachusetts Department of Transportation (MassDOT) is underscoring the importance of removing distractions while driving, urging drivers as summer vehicle travel increases to please pay attention to the road, reduce speed and drive hands-free of devices. The Registry of Motor Vehicles (RMV) has recorded 53,638 motor vehicle citations which includes 40,181 warnings for distracted driving since the Baker-Polito Administration's "hands-free" law took effect on Feb. 23, 2020.

The "hands-free" law stipulates that operators of motor vehicles cannot use an electronic device unless the device is being used in hands-free mode. Operators cannot read or view text, images or videos, unless what is being viewed is helping with navigation, and the device is mounted in an appropriate location. Motorists also cannot make phone calls unless they can do so without holding their phones, by utilizing technology such as Bluetooth. The law also requires law enforcement officers to report data on violations that will be shared with the public. The use of phones and all electronic devices, including phones in hands-free mode, remains illegal for drivers under the age of 18.

"Distracted drivers are a hazard on the road," said Acting Transportation Secretary and CEO Jamey Tesler. "Drivers must have eyes on the road ahead because even the smallest distraction in a vehicle can have deadly consequences. For your sake and the sake of others traveling on the roads, please put the phone away, drive sober, travel at or below the posted speed limit and pay attention to what's going on around you while driving."

"As we look forward to a great summer across New England, we're counting on every Massachusetts driver to do your part and put the phone away," said Secretary of Public Safety and Security

Thomas Turco. "All of us in public safety remain committed to enforcing the hands-free law and ending distracted driving - to protect motorists, cyclists, pedestrians, and all our neighbors on the road. Texting, scrolling, and posting can wait - please stay alert and travel safely."

"The RMV encourages drivers to stay vigilant, remain focused, and be aware of others sharing the roadways across the Commonwealth," said Acting Registrar of Motor Vehicles Colleen Ogilvie. "Distracted driving can have serious and fatal consequences for both experienced drivers and junior operators who have just secured a driver's license or learner's permit, so it's critical to spread the word and communicate the dangers of distracted driving to family members, friends, co-workers and others."

Punishment for violating the hands-free law includes a $100 fine for a first offense, a $250 fine for a second offense, and a $500 fine for a third or subsequent offense. Operators who commit a second or subsequent offense are required to complete an educational program focused on distracted driving prevention. To date, the program has been assigned to operators 161 times, with 74 individuals having completed the online training requirement, and 87 individuals currently required to complete the training. A third or subsequent offense will count as a surchargeable incident.

"We cannot be attentive and defensive drivers if we are distracted by our phones," said Safe Roads Alliance President Emily Stein. "Hang up and drive for your own safety and for everyone else you share the road with. Hang up for your kids in the backseat, who one day will be drivers themselves. They are watching you closely, and if you text or talk while driving, then it's more likely for your kids to be distracted when they start driving."

Key findings from the FY22 Massachusetts Highway Safety Plan are:

- From 2015 to 2019, there were 14,982 fatal crashes involving a distracted driver out of 169,009 total fatal crashes across all fifty states.

- 204 fatal crashes of 1,675 during the same time frame, the percentage of fatal crashes involving a distracted driver in Massachusetts was 12%.

- From 2015 to 2019, there were 213 distracted drivers involved in 204 fatal crashes involving a distracted driver.

- From 2015 to 2019, there were 216 fatalities reported in 204 fatal crashes involving a distracted driver.

- From 2015 to 2019, fatal distracted driving crashes occur most often in October, July, and June. These three months accounted for a third of all fatal crashes with a distracted driver.

- Unlike speeding and impaired driving, distracted driving fatal crashes occur more often during the week (Monday - Thursday) than the weekend (Friday - Sunday).

- Massachusetts ranked 27th out of 50 states for fatal crashes involving a distracted driver.

- By roadway type, over half of fatal crashes involving a distracted driver took place along either principal arterial or minor arterial roads.

- Fatal crashes involving a distracted driver are more frequent along roadways with higher traffic volumes and higher posted speed limits than collectors or local roads. For example, nearly 80% of distracted driver-involved fatal crashes occurred on interstates and arterials in Massachusetts, all of which have 35 mph or higher speed limits.

- Overall, 29% (59 of 204) of all distracted driving fatal crashes involved speeding.

Under the new law, vehicles without built-in GPS, Apple Car Play, or Android Audio must be equipped with a phone mount on the dash or windshield for GPS navigation. For motorists not using hands-free technology, the EOPSS Office of Grants and Research offers these additional tips:

- Before driving, please turn your phone off and put it out of reach.

- Set your mobile phone to "Do Not Disturb While Driving" mode.

- Let your friends and family know that you'll be driving and can't take their calls or texts.

- If you have to make a call or send a text, pull over.

- Watch for pedestrians and bicyclists - especially at night.

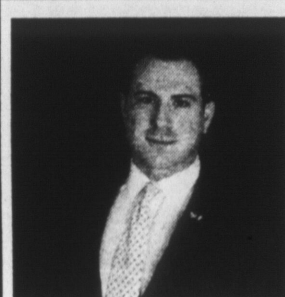

- Remember to buckle up! Seatbelts are your best defense against a distracted driver.

SCAM WARNINGS:

Fake jewelry scam

Recently, members of the DCU were conducting surveillance and witnessed what they believe to be a fake jewelry flimflam/scam. A motor vehicle stop of the suspect's vehicle was conducted. There were 5 occupants in the vehicle, including two children.

Detectives noted that the female involved was wearing a blonde wig, which she removed prior to the motor vehicle stop. Due to the fact that the involved party (possible victim) was uncooperative, detectives were unable to confirm that a crime had been committed. Therefore, the occupants of the vehicle were sent on their way.

The suspects involved are believed to be group of Roma people. These individuals usually target elderly individuals. Their modus operandi (method) is to strike-up a conversation with the victim. They will hug the victim and steal their jewelry, or they will attempt to place fake jewelry (ring, necklace, bracelet) onto the victim and remove the victim's jewelry in the process. These individuals use rental vehicles so it is likely that the vehicle will have an out-of-state license plate. They may also periodically switch vehicles.

You may recall that back in July 2019, we had several similar flimflam/jewelry thefts. The female involved in the People who are eligible will get up to half of their child tax credit in these monthly payments and the other half when they file their 2021 taxes.

If you qualify for payments — which depends, in part, on how much you make — you'll get them on about the 15th of each month, automatically, without having to do anything. The IRS is working to get online systems set up on its webpage and make sure all questions get answered. Go to IRS.gov for the latest info on who qualifies, how much you'll get, and how to address any problems you might run into.

When money from the government is in the news, we know scammers are about to run their standard playbook. They may call, email, text, or DM you. They'll say they can help you get your payments earlier (they can't), get you more money (also no), or tell you other lies (for sure).

Here's the real deal:

Only the IRS will be sending these payments. Anyone trying to "help" you get your child tax credit is really after your money.

The government will NEVER call, text, email, or DM you out of the blue, asking for money or information. Keep your money — and your Social Security, bank account, debit and credit card numbers — to yourself.

Nobody legit will ever demand that you pay by gift card, wire transfer through companies like Money Gram or Western Union, or cryptocurrency. That's a scam, every time.

If someone tries to scam you out of these payments or anything else, report it to the FTC at ReportFraud.ftc.gov. (taken from the ftc.gov)

Is Your Nest Egg Endangered By Medical Costs? Consider These Key Steps

Needing long-term care in our senior years is something many people don't like to think about, much less plan for. But statistics show that a sizable majority of today's 65-and-over population will eventually require some type of long-term care services, which are expensive.

In fact, they have a 70% chance of needing long-term care in their remaining years. Other medical and health care expenses also often pile up in retirement. An average 65-year-old couple will spend $295,000 on those costs throughout retirement — excluding long-term care. With these potential bills posing threats to a stable retirement plan, it's important to find ways to protect the savings nest egg, says Dariusz Godlewski, a licensed investment advisor representative and the president of Financial Wealth Alliance.

"Medical bills and long-term care don't have to drain your retirement savings," Godlewski says. "But they will if you ignore the data and don't plan accordingly."

"A lot of people think Medicare covers most or all of your healthcare in retirement, but that's not accurate. As healthcare inflation continues, there are financial planning steps you can take and effective savings strategies to create a cushion in your nest egg for those needs."

Godlewski suggests these ways to protect your retirement plan from high medical, health care and long-term care costs:

- Health Savings Account. Having an HSA is a way to build a nest egg to cover future healthcare costs, and it's also a tax-efficient savings option. "You can contribute tax-free money, not pay taxes on earnings, and withdraw the money tax-free now or in retirement to pay for qualified medical expenses," Godlewski says.

- Long-term care insurance. Purchasing this kind of policy results in receiving a monthly benefit toward long-term care, either for a specified period or the remainder of one's lifetime. One dilemma, Godlewski says, is that long-term care insurance is expensive and policy holders buy it without knowing whether they will ever need to use it. Another option, he says, is purchasing a life insurance policy with the option of adding a long-term care insurance rider. "An LTC rider allows you to receive part of the death benefit while you're still alive," Godlewski says. "The death benefit can be used for long-term care expenses. The rider can be triggered by the diagnosis of an illness that leaves you unable to care for yourself."

- Investments. Investing for growth maximizes your savings and creates more room to meet future medical bills. "The idea is for the assets to grow more than the inflation rate for medical expenses, which has usually been higher than consumer inflation," Godlewski says. "There's a risk in the medical expenses context of over-allocating to fixed-income investments. That strategy, coupled with today's low interest rates and the effects of inflation, would lead to diminished purchasing power."

"The costs can seem daunting, but most retirement healthcare costs can be dealt with if you've done proper planning," Godlewski says. "Viewing those costs as an annual expense can make it easier to plan for and pay for them."

Council Votes 6-3 To OK $475M Pension Bond

Phelan Votes In Favor After Solicitor Issues Opinion No Conflict Of Interest

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors on Monday approved Mayor Thomas Koch's request to use a $475 million bond to cover Quincy's outstanding pension liabilities.

Councillors voted 6-3 in favor of the bond, with six votes being the minimum amount of support the measure needed to pass.

The bond's fate appeared uncertain after the council's finance committee voted 5-3 to give a positive recommendation to the measure on June 14. While a simple majority vote was enough to move the bond out of committee, six votes were needed for final approval at a regular council session.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan Jr. did not vote on the measure during the June 14 committee meeting but did vote on Monday. Phelan, who worked as the city's IT director until his retirement in 2018, on Monday said he did not participate in the June 14 committee meeting or a previous committee session because he was waiting to see if he had to recuse himself from the matter. Phelan told his colleagues the city solicitor's office had informed him late last week that he was able to vote on the matter.

"I want to make it clear that at the last meeting, I was in the meeting, but I did not participate. At that time, the last two meetings, I had put a letter into the solicitor's office to seek an opinion, where I get a check from the retirement board, whether or not it was within state law for me to vote on it," Phelan said.

"On Friday, I received an opinion from the solicitor's office. My pension is my pension, and I am going to make what I make for the rest of the time I am drawing a pension. Where it does not affect [that], the state says I can vote on it."

Phelan voted in favor of the pension bond Monday along with Councillors Anthony Andronico, Noel DiBona, William Harris, David McCarthy and Brian Palmucci. Councillors Ian Cain, Nina Liang and Anne Mahoney voted in opposition.

Prior to Monday's vote, Mahoney said she was disturbed Phelan had been cleared to participate in the matter following the June 14 committee meeting. She compared it with Koch's decision to buy the Munroe

Building, a site that could one day provide a new home for Quincy College, with pandemic relief funds after withdrawing a request to borrow money for the same purchase prior to a potential council vote.

"In the eleventh hour, the game has changed, and that is what Quincy does best - changing the game. It is disturbing to me - the optics look terrible. I know that many of you do not care about the optics, you think people aren't paying attention, but they are," Mahoney said.

"We couldn't get Quincy College passed...and now we are going to spend pandemic money to buy a building. We couldn't get this passed, so in the eleventh hour all of a sudden other councillors can come up and vote."

In response, Phelan said he wanted to stick to the issues. He said he supported the pension bond because, without it, the city would spend more and more each year to cover the unfunded pension liabilities.

"If you could go from 7.5 to 2 percent interest, and you had a house or a business, you would go for that," Phelan said. "If we don't do anything, it is going to erode the budget."

Massachusetts currently requires communities to fully fund unfunded pension liabilities - which were accrued when municipal employees did not contribute a substantial amount of their pay toward pensions - by 2037.

Quincy had paid down its unfunded pension liabilities through the annual budget. The budget for the current fiscal year, FY21, included $32.18 million for pensions. Eric Mason, the city's finance director, previously told the council that expense could grow to $62.9 million in FY36 if the bond were not approved.

At the June 14 meeting, Chris Walker, Koch's chief of staff, said the $475 million would be invested in the Massachusetts Pension Reserves Investment Management (PRIM) Board's Pension Reserves Investment Trust (PRIT). The PRIT contains more than $90 billion in assets and its other clients include Massachusetts state employees, the Massachusetts Teachers' Retirement System, and the Boston Teachers' Union.

Following that announcement, councillors amended the bond to include language that the funds must be invested with PRIM. At that same meeting, councillors also amended the bond order to limit the life of the bond to no more than 20 years after several councillors said a 30-year bond would extend the payments too far past the 2037 deadline to fully fund pensions.

Walker on Monday told councillors that Rick Manley, the city's outside bond counsel, was concerned the 20-year limit could harm the city when it goes out to seek the bond.

"He felt that it could constrict the city in a number of ways," Walker said. "For example, if the city was negotiating, the best deal for the city could be 21 years, could be 22 years, could be 24 years."

Palmucci then proposed an amendment to the order, which the states the bond be "for a period of 20 years or such longer term as to not exceed 30 years following consultation with the Executive Office of Administration and Finance."

"Essentially what that says is we want it to be 20 years, however it can't be 30 years, and it can only be more than 20 years if the administration is working in consultation with the state Executive Office of Administration and Finance," Palmucci said. "I believe that strikes a balance between what bond advisors are saying as well as what the sentiment of the body is."

Palmucci's amendment was approved in a 7-1 vote Monday, with Mahoney opposed and Cain voting present.

City councillors had held off on reviewing Koch's proposed $346.65 million budget for fiscal year 2022, which begins July 1, while they were vetting the pension proposal. The budget was drafted based on the assumption the pension proposal would pass and revisions may have been required had the bond been rejected.

The council's finance committee will hold a series of departmental budget hearings Wednesday and Thursday to review the budget. Both meetings will begin at 5:30 p.m.

Liang, the council president, on Monday said a special meeting of the full council could be held later Thursday to approve the final budget. A special meeting is required because Monday's meeting was the last regularly scheduled council session before councillors recess for the summer.

$1.28M In Community Preservation Projects OK'd

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors on Monday allocated $1.28 million in community preservation money toward 13 different projects. More than one-third of the funds will be used to repair the brick wall at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

The city's Community Preservation Committee had previously vetted each of the projects receiving funds.

"I am happy to report a group of beautiful projects by many volunteers, non-profits, and activists that really donate many hours to make Quincy a more prosperous city to live in," said Councillor Noel DiBona, who is a member of the CPC.

"These folks have come in and done a lot of projects."

Eight of the 13 projects to receive funds are categorized as historic preservation initiatives.

The largest allocation of funds went to the city's Department of Natural Resources, which received $500,000 to repair the brick wall at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. Kristin Powers, the city's community preservation administrator, said in a memo provided to councillors that 70 percent of the brick wall will require some sort of remedial work, including 30 percent that will require complete reconstruction.

The total estimate to repair the brick wall is $930,000, Powers said. The $500,000 allocation from the CPC will cover the first phase of work, she stated, and the city will seek other grant funds to cover the second phase of work.

The Department of Natural Resources also received two grants totaling $69,700 for work at the Hancock Cemetery in Quincy Center. The City Clerk's Office received $80,000 for the preservation and protection of city records, photos, heirlooms and other memorabilia.

Life Community Church, located on Washington Street, received a $135,000 grant for an exterior renovation project. Bethany Congregational Church, located on Spear Street, received a $125,000 grant to repair and preserve its exterior stonework.

The United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum received a $125,000 grant for continued collections management, including the digitization of documents and preservation of various artifacts.

The National Society of the Colonial Dames of America in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts received a $26,048 grant for an archeological investigation of the Dorothy Quincy Homestead on Butler Road.

Grants were awarded for three recreation projects this year.

The largest allocation, $125,000, will go toward the Department of Natural Resources and co-applicant PJ Foley. Those funds will be used for the conceptual design of the Presidents Coast Pedestrian Highway, which Powers described as "a citywide pedestrian trail connecting all three peninsulas with Quincy Center, the Neponset River Watershed, the Fore River Watershed and the Blue Hills."

The department also received a $55,000 grant to replace the basketball courts behind the Snug Harbor Elementary School. The department previously received a National Recreation & Park Association grant of $66,000 that will be applied to the project.

The Quincy Public Schools and Clifford Marshall School PTO received a $30,000 grant for the creation of a butterfly and bird garden and other land-ment previously received a National Recreation & Park Association grant of $66,000 that will be applied to the project.

O'Donnell Promotes Norfolk County Registry Of Deeds' Social Media

Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell is reiterating the importance he places on the Registry's use of social media platforms to communicate directly with the citizens of Norfolk County.

"At the Registry of Deeds we put a priority on communicating with Registry users," O'Donnell said. "Just because our doors close at the end of the business day doesn't mean the Registry has to stop working for you.

"For example, our website www.norfolkdeeds.org allows people to look up and view over 13 million scanned images with some 40 million pages of land documents dating back to the Registry's beginnings in 1793. Additionally, users can access our website to learn about our latest consumer protection programs. I also want people to know that Registry information is accessible not just from workstations and laptops, but also from their smartphones and tablets."

O'Donnell noted that you can print out an application of the popular Homestead Act. A Homestead provides a homeowner with limited protection against the forced sale of their primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000.

Norfolk County residents can also sign-up on-line for its free Consumer Notification Service. This program will alert a person anytime a land document has been recorded against their name in Norfolk County. Additionally, there is valuable county real estate information that can be researched and tracked. Someone interested in the number of residential and commercial properties sold or the average prices of property sold can find that information.

Besides the Registry website, other forms of social media utilized by the Registry of Deeds include Facebook, facebook.com/NorfolkDeeds, and Twitter, twitter.com/NorfolkDeeds.

"The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds has utilized Facebook and Twitter to provide information to the general public," O'Donnell said. "By utilizing these platforms, Norfolk County residents can learn more about home ownership and other consumer initiatives like protecting themselves against Deed Scam rip-offs, along with other outreach services, including learning about Registry office hours in their local community."

The Registry has also filmed multiple public service announcements (PSA's) which are available on the Registry's website and YouTube. These PSA's

Ask Barbara Graceffa: Debunking Paint Colors: Understanding Undertones

'Secretary Of The Interior'

I just spent $5,000 painting my kitchen cabinets grey and they appear blue to me. I thought I was choosing a neutral color, where did I go wrong? What can I do to counteract that color? Paula I'll let you in on a secret: masstones and undertones.

With the exception of the three pure primary colors of red, yellow and blue, as well as the non-colors of basic white (the origin of all colors) and true black (the absence of color), all colors are created by some combination of these five hues. The masstone of a color is the dominant one, it's what you see first. For example, in the color magenta, the masstone is red while the undertone is blue. When looking at turquoise, the masstone is blue with a green undertone. But don't look at paint colors in isolation.

My best tip: audition the color in the room you plan to use it. The major paint companies now have sample pints or poster boards or peel and stick versions of the same so you can test out the colors before you commit. This way you will be able to see them in all light conditions and see how they play with other colors in the room (or even the foliage or brick wall of a neighboring building or sky or ocean outside your large windows).

If the undertone is still not apparent to you, here are three more tips that might help. First, hold the paint sample up to a white piece of paper to discover the masstone and undertone. Second, look at the potential selection(s) in comparison to the other hues in the manufacturer's color card or five-color paint strip or, likewise, in its location among the hundreds of colors on the display wall at the paint store. If you are wondering if the teal color you are choosing reads more blue or green, it should be more apparent if it is organized with more blue samples or green ones. Finally, look at the paint color's name. If you're looking at a neutral white with a name like lemon chiffon, it will have a yellow undertone.

To counteract your cabinet's blue undertones, warm up the cool temperature of a blue color with warm ones like orange (blue's complementary color on the color wheel) or even red or yellow and/or introduce more warm wood tones in the room.

Councillors Oppose Proposed Bridge To Pine Island

By SCOTT JACKSON

City councillors on Monday unanimously approved a resolution voicing their opposition to a proposed bridge that would link Pine Island inside Blacks Creek with the rest of Merrymount Park.

Mayor Thomas Koch's administration is currently seeking permission to build a 450-foot long, 17-foot wide bridge that would connect the island to the Ryan Boathouse. To build the bridge, the city would have to drive 66 pile towers into the creek.

The Quincy Conservation Commission is scheduled to review the project during its July 7 meeting.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan Jr., one of the sponsors of the resolution approved Monday, said he was opposed to the project because he and a number of residents want Blacks Creek to remain as is.

"I think we have a valuable salt marsh in the Blacks Creek area. Recently, in Broad Meadows, we just spent millions of dollars re-establishing a salt marsh, which we have in abundance," at Blacks Creek, Phelan said. "There are a lot of wildlife in there. Some of them are endangered species that aren't around much places. One of the reasons they are there is because the area is alive, it's well."

Phelan said the bridge could do irreversible damage to the marsh.

"What I am worried about is putting in...a 450-foot long bridge with 66 piles that are going to be driven into a pristine salt marsh that are going to cause irreparable damage," he said. "I think this is not something good...and it will do irreparable damage to the salt marsh and I wanted to go on record."

Councillor Noel DiBona, who cosponsored the resolution, said he had heard from a number of residents who were opposed to the bridge.

"Whenever I get an overabundance of emails as an at-large councillor, I know there is a red flag that goes up. That red flag were the folks that were concerned - not only abutting that area but throughout the city," Di-

Bona said.

Residents, he said, were concerned that chemicals used to treat the wood that would be used in the bridge could leach into the salt marsh and that healthy trees might be cut down as part of the project.

"They basically wanted to preserve the environment," DiBona said.

Councillor Anne Mahoney, who also cosponsored the resolution, said she was hopeful the administration would pay heed to the public opposition to the proposal.

"I just know there has been a large outcry about this so I would hope that the administration is listening to what people are asking for and maybe we could stop this project," she said.

City councillors in 2017 had approved a $27 million bond, which will be paid back from hotel tax receipts, to fund various park projects, such as the construction of the Hancock-Adams Common in Quincy Center and the new dog park off Quarry Street.

That bond set aside $2.4 million for the design and permitting of various improvements within Merrymount Park, including the proposed bridge, but did not include money to construct those improvements.

scaping improvements at the school.

Two open space projects received grants this year.

The Colonial Dames received $7,800 for the replanting of the border of the parterre of the formal garden at the Dorothy Quincy Homestead.

The Seaside Gardeners of Squantum received a $5,000 grant for their causeway beautification program.

There were no applicants who sought to use community preservation funds for affordable housing projects.

Councillors approved the 13 grants in a 7-2 vote, with Anne Mahoney and Brian Palmucci opposed. Mahoney said the city should be more transparent about how community preservation funds are used, such as putting information about CPC projects on its website.

"I do think we need to be a little more transparent about how we are spending this money," she said.

In a separate 8-1 vote, with Palmucci opposed, councillors approved allocating $50,284 in community preservation money toward the personal services budget within the park department to offset the CPA administrator's salary.

Quincy's voters adopted the state's Community Preservation Act by referendum in 2006. The CPA fund is financed through a 1 percent surcharge on property taxes. The first $100,000 in assessed value for each residential property is exempt from the surcharge, as are residential properties owned by some seniors and those who qualify for low-income housing. The state also matches a portion of CPA funds in each community that has adopted the act.

AAA: Massachusetts Gas Prices Remain The Same

Massachusetts's average gas price is the same as last week, averaging $2.95 per gallon. Monday's price is 4 cents higher than a month ago ($2.91), and 89 cents higher than June 21, 2020 ($2.06). Massachusetts's average gas price is 12 cents lower than the national average.

"Despite the latest increase in demand, many motorists are not seeing significant pump price jumps due to increasing supply levels, which have significantly built over the last four weeks," said Mary Maguire, AAA Northeast Director of Public and Government Affairs. "During this same period, the national gas price average has only increased four cents."

AAA Northeast's June 21 survey of fuel prices found the current national average to be 1 cent lower than last week ($3.08), averaging $3.07 a gallon. Monday's national average price is 3 cents higher than a month ago ($3.04), and 95 cents higher than this day last year ($2.12).

proposing a 15-story, 200-unit residential building on that site with 4,000 square feet of retail space and 4,000 square feet of restaurant space. Construction on site could begin in the first half of 2022, he said.

The second building would be located at 1565 Hancock St., also known as the Messina Lot, which the city took by eminent domain for $6.8 million in 2019. A 14- or 15-story building would be constructed there, housing the performing arts center along with approximately 350 residential units.

Arcari, who is the president and CFO of the Boston Hospitality Group, would construct a seven-story building at 1445 Hancock St., now home to a Family Dollar. The new building would include a restaurant on the ground floor, a co-working space on the second floor, and 40 residential units on the upper floors. Arcari said construction on site could begin in early 2023.

As part of the plan to transform the area of Quincy Center to the west of Hancock Street, Koch said he plans to ask the City Council to acquire the two buildings at 1461 and 1453 Hancock St., which are home to a Tae Kwon Do studio and a coffee shop, among other businesses.

Those buildings, which are located between two of the proposed new buildings, would be razed to make way for a new green space. The green space would also allow for outdoor dining at the restaurants located in the new buildings next door.

Slater, whose company is also behind a proposed 16-story building in North Quincy now in the permitting stage, said his firm was "drawn immediately" to Quincy Center when it was deciding on the location for its next project. He credited Koch for helping make Quincy an attractive place to live and work.

"The mayor's long commitment to the downtown area has led Quincy from the depths of the recession, most recently, and of course kept this momentum alive during the pandemic," said Slater, who is a partner in the NHL's Seattle Kraken expansion team.

"With new office buildings in the works, a wave of residential buildings as well, close proximity to transit, a blossoming business community, beach access, golf courses, an impressive culinary scene here in the city, the mayor's vision has made Quincy one of the most desirable places to live, to eat and to do business in."

STRETCH OF BUILDINGS along Hancock Street would be demolished as part of latest redevelopment plans for Quincy Center. A 15-story building would replace the Adams Arcade at 1469 Hancock St. (far left) and a seven-story building would replace the Family Dollar at 1445 Hancock St. (far right). The city would acquire and raze the two buildings in the middle, setting aside the land for open space.

Slater, who has also produced a number of films, said he looked forward to working with the city on plans for the new performing arts center.

"In my view, people flock to cities for culture. I think what the mayor is doing by taking the lead here on bringing a cultural center to Quincy is phenomenal and I really applaud him for that," Slater said.

"I am a movie enthusiast myself...and do have passion and experience in the arts outside of real estate, so the opportunity to work on something like this is thrilling, first of all. We really look forward to working more with the city, the community, on developing what this incredible building will look like."

Koch and Slater said planning the performing arts center building is in its early stages and it has yet to be determined who would operate the performing arts center on site. Koch said the venue would be named in honor of First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Adams.

Arcari, whose firm operates the Tavern in the Square restaurants, among other establishments, said the new restaurant on site would help bring people to Quincy Center.

"I'm a restaurant guy first and a developer sort of second. The most important thing was to create density downtown and bring people downtown. What better than a new restaurant," Arcari said. "We want to do something special here...we wanted to make it really big and inviting."

Arcari described the new restaurant he is planning as an American tavern with an eclectic menu.

"It's sort of a restaurant for everybody," he said. "There will be a lunch crowd, a dinner crowd where families can enjoy it too. As the night gets later, probably a younger crowd settles in there."

"It will really be open and inviting for everybody."

Arcari added he would be willing to help Slater plan his restaurant in the nearby building.

"Even though we're opening a big restaurant here, I want somebody to open a great restaurant across the way in Sam's building," Arcari said.

The three projects would be subject to review by the Quincy Planning Board. The City Council would also have to approve a land disposition agreement to sell the property at 1565 Hancock St. to Slater before it can be developed.

In addition to asking councillors to acquire the two buildings at 1461 and 1453 Hancock St., Koch told The Sun he would ask them to take the building at 1620 Hancock St. That building was home to a pizzeria but has sat vacant since a 1997 fire.

The mayor said he would designate Derrick Fitzgerald as the developer of that site. Fitzgerald had previously proposed an 80-unit condominium building at 24-26 Adams St., two parcels of land the city plans to acquire as part of Koch's proposal to build a new John Adams presidential library next to the Adams Academy.

"The gentleman that was going to be building the condo buildings next to the Adams Academy, Fitzgerald, will be designated as the developer for that site. Essentially, we are going to be buying it and they will be buying it from us," Koch said.

"As we all know, everyone is sick of looking at that for 20 years."

The new building at 1620 Hancock St. would likely be similar to new construction elsewhere in Quincy Center, with housing on the upper floors and a retail component on the ground level, Koch said.

The projects unveiled June 17 are not the first ones planned for the section of Quincy Center between Hancock Street and Burgin Parkway.

Cliveden Place, the Galvin brothers' 56-unit condominium buildings at 1545 Hancock St., was among the first new developments to open in Quincy Center.

The council has also approved a land disposition agreement with FoxRock Properties, allowing the company to build a medical office building, hotel and housing on the former Ross Lot. Koch on June 17 said FoxRock could break ground on site as soon as next year.

The city also plans to construct a new municipal parking garage in the vicinity of the former AJ Wright building at 100 Parkway. The mayor said plans for that site, which may also include an additional new commercial building, will begin to come into focus now that the three new projects along Hancock Street have been announced.

MESSINA LOT at the corner of Hancock Street and Mayor Walter J. Hannon Parkway in Quincy Center could one day be home to a 15-story building housing a performing arts center and some 350 residential units. The new performing arts center would be named in honor of First Ladies Abigail and Louisa Adams. The city took the 1.1-acre lot by eminent domain for $6.8 million in 2019. This view is looking towards Burgin Parkway.

Cain Seeking Re-Election In Ward 3

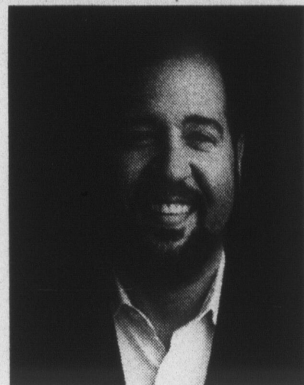

Ward 3 Councillor Ian Cain announces he will run for re-election for the seat he has held since 2016.

"It is my honor to serve you on the Quincy City Council and in this great city, which is why it pleases me to let you know that I will be running for re-election this year to serve as the Ward 3 city councillor for two more years. I am truly grateful for your support in my efforts, and I promise to continue to work for you and to represent your interests to the City Council," Cain said.

Cain, a Quincy native, said that he is excited to continue his work on the Quincy City Council advocating fiscal prioritization and responsibility, advancing economic development and industry and private sector job creation, and completing development of a citywide municipal broadband network.

"My focus will continue to be on issues that matter to my constituents and residents of the city. Over the last term, I've had successes in bringing municipal aggregation and renewable energy purchasing options, ensuring that land is protected as open space for Montclair, and I won't stop until we provide residents with high quality and low-cost internet options."

Cain - in collaboration with Quincy's Mayor Thomas Koch and Entry-

IAN CAIN

Point Networks - has been leading the development of a citywide fiberoptic network in Quincy since 2018 in response to residents' demands for internet options outside of the current monopolistic provider. Over 12,000 residents responded to a survey offered by mail and online in 2019 about their internet use, how much they currently pay and if they would support a citywide network. The results indicated over 80 percent would participate in municipal broadband and that, on average, residents pay $93 per month for internet. The goal for Quincy's broadband network - over and above providing connectivity to all residents, eliminating the digital divide, and allowing for greater participation in the innovation economy - is to increase competition, to drive down price, and to increase service quality.

Following months of planning, EntryPoint Networks delivered Quincy's Broadband Master Plan to the Quincy City Council in December 2020. Quincy released a Request for Proposals for the design of a citywide fiberoptic network in March 2021. The city is currently reviewing the five submissions received. For more information on Quincy's broadband development efforts, visit www.quincyfiber.com.

A product of the Quincy Public Schools, Cain attended Wollaston Elementary and Central Middle Schools before graduating from B.C. High School. He also graduated from Boston College and earned an MBA from Duke University.

Cain, 38, is president of The Highpoint Group, providing strategic advisory and capital expertise to the public, private and nonprofit sectors and is executive chairman of QUBIC Labs, a startup incubator and innovation hub, both based in Quincy.

Cain has successfully run for and won three elections: the first in 2015, and again in 2017 and in 2019. Election Day is on Tuesday, Nov. 2.

Team Cain will be holding a re-election campaign kickoff on Thursday, July 8, at 6 p.m. at Furnace Brook Golf Course. All are welcomed.

Cain can be contacted by phone at (617) 657-4204 or by e-mail at cainforquincy@gmail.com. For more information, visit www.iancain.org.

DiBona also has served as the City Council's representative to the Community Preservation Committee (CPC) since 2016, where DiBona has continually supported the approval of funding for new playgrounds, park improvements, open/green space, historical preservation projects and affordable housing throughout the city.

DiBona is a 1993 graduate of Quincy High School and holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Massachusetts-Boston.

NOEL DiBONA

He is married to his wife Niamh, and they have three children Tyler, Aidan and Nora, all of whom attend the Quincy Public Schools.

DiBona also previously worked at the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office as an senior community service and inmate reintegration coordinator from 2016 through 2020.

DiBona remarked that although the last 16 months have been challenging navigating through the COVID-19 pandemic, the City Council worked collaboratively with the city administration, non-profit organizations and volunteers to ensure that the public was always provided with proper information on vaccination options and sites. DiBona also applauded all health care workers, the Quincy Police, Quincy Fire Department, and Brewster Ambulance, as well as teachers, and all other essential workers for their dedication and service through these unprecedented times.

In the future as a city councillor-at-large, DiBona said he plans to continue to support initiatives for infrastructure improvements throughout the city to include repaving of roads and sidewalks, traffic improvements, finishing ongoing seawall upgrades, as well as preservation of the environment, and improvements to flood mitigation.

"It has been a true pleasure representing the citizens of Quincy as your citywide councillor-at-large over the last six years, and I will to continue to be a voice for constituents on all matters," DiBona said. "I humbly ask for your vote on election day Nov. 2nd."

City Celebrates Old Glory At 70th Flag Day Parade

MAYOR THOMAS KOCH waves to spectators as he marches in the 70th Quincy Flag Day Parade June 12. The parade was established in 1952 by the mayor's father, the late Richard J. Koch, Sr. Those early parades featured youth members of the Koch Club marching through Norfolk Downs and finishing with a flag-raising ceremony at Cavanagh Stadium. Today, the parade includes an array of speciality units, bands and flag bearers. Some of the attractions of this year's parade are shown on this page. Other Flag Day photos on Page 18, Page 19 and Page 35.

QHS Girls' Lax Bows To Scituate In Tournament

By TOM JOYCE

The Quincy High School girls' lacrosse team went up against a tough opponent that had plenty of success on the attack early in the contest.

The Presidents hosted the Scituate Sailors in the first round of the MIAA Division 1 South sectional playoff bracket Monday at Veterans' Memorial Stadium and dropped the contest 17-5 to finish their season at 11-5 overall.

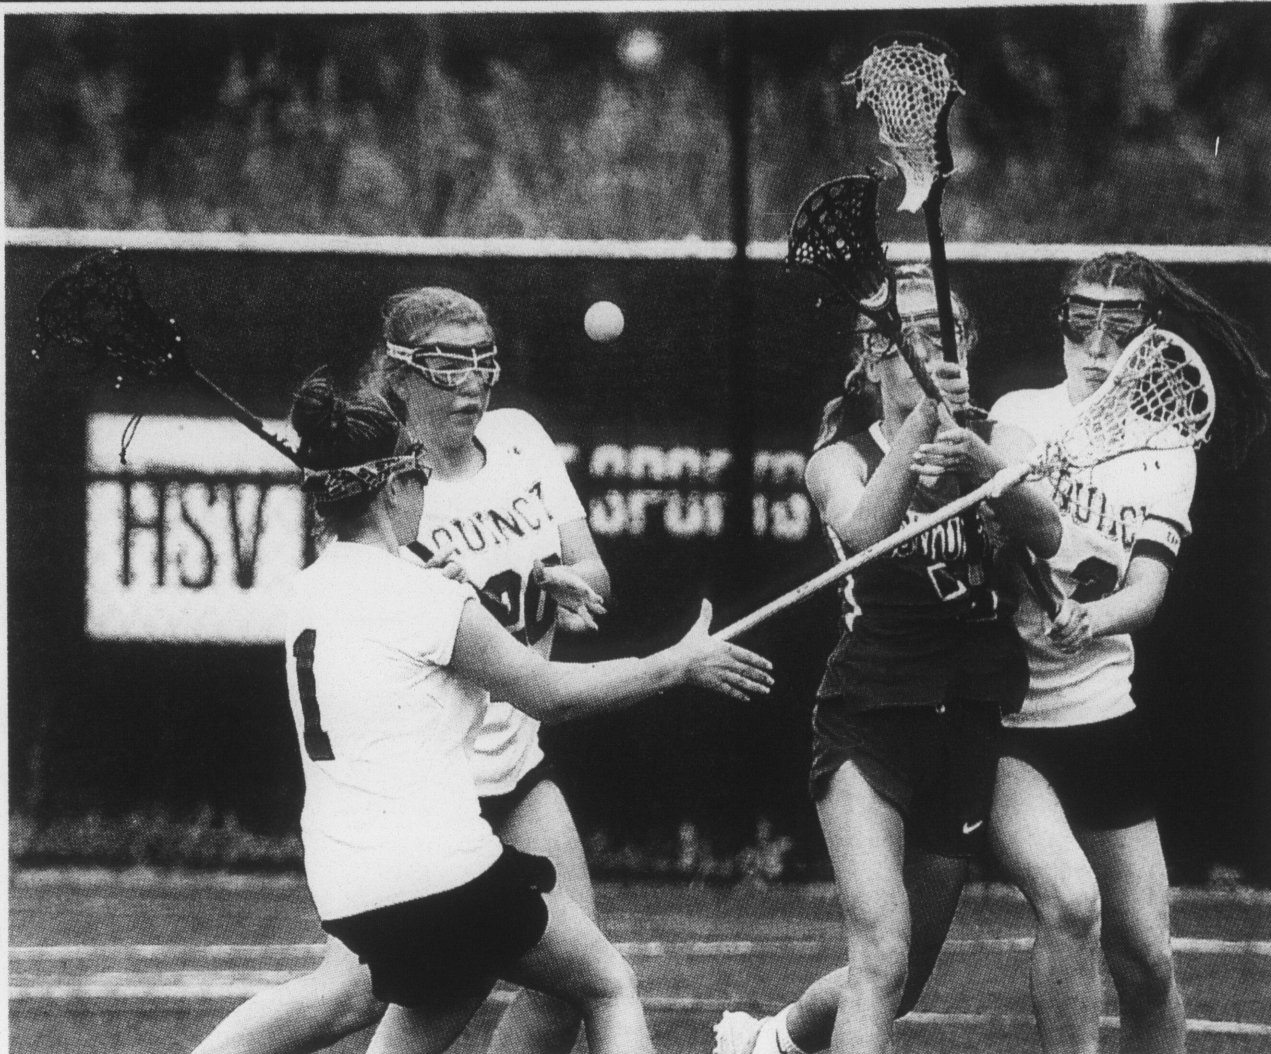

"I think we have a great future ahead of us," Presidents head coach Kerry Monaco said. "We have a young team and a lot of girls coming up. We have a bright future ahead of us."

"It was a great season," she added. "I have no complaints. These girls worked hard every day. They come to play. They come to work hard. They improved so much. I could not be more proud of them."

Scituate got the better of the Presidents early in the contest. Scituate netted each of the first 12 goals of the game. Scituate's first goal came just about a minute into the contest and the team put up nine goals in the first quarter. The game went to a running clock with 10:51 left in the second quarter when Scituate took a 10-0 lead. Scituate put up two more goals before the Presidents started scoring.

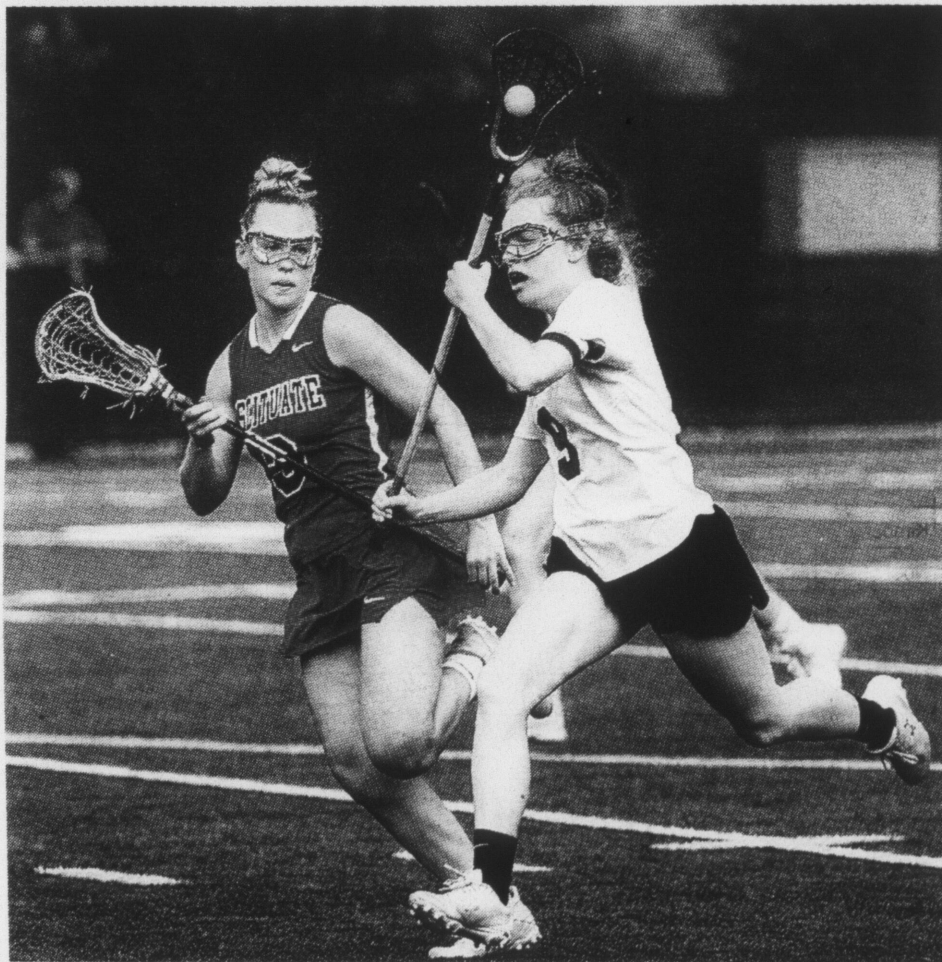

However, with 4:12 remaining in the first half, junior Chloe Lynch put the

Local Groups Receive Better Beaches Program Grants

Save the Harbor/Save the Bay and the Department of Conservation & Recreation (DCR) recently awarded more than $300,000 in Better Beaches program grants to 67 organizations and creatives to support 150 free beach events and programs in 9 communities from Nahant to Nantasket in 2021.

The grant recipients included five from Quincy:

City of Quincy Department of Natural Resources/Friends of Wollaston Beach, $10,000 for youth and beach programs on Wollaston Beach; Mattapan Food & Fitness, $5,150 for Mattapan on Wheels event and Beach Party; Friends of Squantum Point, $4,000 for a day at Squantum Point; You Good Sis LLC, $2,500 for yoga and breathing classes; and Sophia Mei and Thi Tran, $3,000, Asian night market.

This year's Better Beaches Program grants will bring free concerts, beach parties, circus performances, DJ sets, yoga and fitness classes, art classes, kayaking and paddle boarding, movie nights, pedicabs, mobility mats, beach wheelchairs and more to the region's waterfront neighborhoods and beachfront communities of Lynn, Nahant, Revere, Winthrop, East Boston, South Boston, Dorchester, Quincy and Hull.

"It is exciting to have so many new organizations on board this year," said Maya Smith, Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's Community Engagement Manager. "I am certain that they will bring new visions, new voices, more food choices, more accessibility and a more diverse audience to the beach."

Funds to support the program come from a legislative appropriation to the Department of Conservation & Recreation and include $50,000 in proceeds from the Virtual Harpoon Shamrock Splash, which will be awarded to organizations and creatives who empower, amplify and invest in community members of color and improve beach access for people with disabilities.

"Save the Harbor is committed to increased equity and improved access in all our programs and on our beaches," said Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's Executive Director Chris Mancini. "Thanks to the support of House Speaker Ron Mariano, Senate President Karen Spilka, the Baker/Polito Administration, the Metropolitan Beaches Commission and all our program, community and funding partners including Harpoon Brewery and JetBlue, it is going to be a great summer on the beach."

DCR Commissioner Jim Montgomery shares Mancini's enthusiasm.

"Our green and blue spaces are priceless locations and the betterment of these natural, cultural, and recreational resources continues to be a priority for DCR and the Baker-Polito Administration," said Montgomery. "I look forward to seeing Better Beaches programs that are accessible to many, work to achieve our shared goals and carry on DCR's mission to protect, promote, and enhance the Massachusetts state parks system."

These free events and programs would not be possible without the support of the Legislative leadership of the Metropolitan Beaches Commission.

"The Better Beaches Program events are as diverse as the communities that host them," said Metropolitan Beaches Commission Co-Chair, Senator Brendan Crighton of Lynn. "But one thing they all have in common is that they bring communities together to enjoy our region's public beaches. Thank you to Save the Harbor/Save the Bay and DCR for working together to strengthen our beachfront communities and waterfront neighborhoods."

Metropolitan Beaches Commission Co-Chair Representative Adrian Madaro of East Boston agreed saying, "Free beach events and programs are critical to Bostonians and the region's residents who rely on these spectacular urban natural resources for recreation, especially during the pandemic."

The success of this program would not be possible without the support of Save the Harbor's program partners and event sponsors, including Harpoon Brewery, JetBlue, Mix 104.1, The Blue Sky Collaborative, The Boston Foundation, The Richard Saltonstall Charitable Foundation, Beacon Capital Partners, P&G Gillette, National Grid, the Daily Catch, and Comcast.

Save the Harbor also thanks House Speaker Ronald Mariano, Senate President Karen Spilka, the Baker/Polito Administration, as well as Metropolitan Beaches Commission Co-Chair's Senator Brendan Crighton of Lynn and Representative Adrian Madaro of East Boston and the legislative and community members of the Commission for their support. They also thank the Baker-Polito Administration, the Massachusetts Legislature, their partners at the Department of Conservation and Recreation, the Boston Centers for Youth & Families, the YMCA of Greater Boston, and the hundreds of people who take part in the Harpoon Shamrock Splash every year, for their support as well.

"It is going to be a terrific summer, with terrific free events and programs that celebrate our diversity and resilience," said Bruce Berman, director of Strategy & Communications at Save the Harbor/Save the Bay. "After a very difficult year like no other, we are looking forward to seeing you all face-to-face on the beach!"

Presidents on the board. She fired in a shot as she charged toward the net to make it a 12-1 game.

Scituate led 14-1 at the half.

In the second half, however, the Presidents had more success finding the back of the net and outscored their opponent 4-3.

The first goal of the second half for the Presidents came from Alyssa Ryan with 7:42 left in the third quarter. It came about three minutes after Scituate lit the lamp for the first time of the second half. Scituate responded to the Presidents' goal by scoring once again with 6:40 left in the quarter.

Scituate's final goal of the game came with 11:48 left in the fourth quarter. The Presidents had most of their offensive production in the fourth quarter, netting three goals -- each from a different player.

The first goal of the fourth quarter from the Presidents came off the stick of sophomore Delia Nichol with 5:47 remaining. The next one came just about two minutes later from junior Maddie Bailey on a wraparound. And with 26 seconds left in the game, senior Jackie Kane took a bounce shot and it went into the back of the Scituate net.

This was Monaco's first official season as the team's head coach. She got the job in 2020 but due to the coronavirus pandemic, there was no season. In 2019 -- the final season before Monaco took over as the head coach -- the team had a losing record. That said, Monaco was happy with the success her team enjoyed this season.

"We definitely set goals at the beginning of the season," she said. "One of the goals was to make the tournament. I know this was an interesting year in that you could bid in, but we would've made the tournament regardless, so that was a huge goal for us. We also made it to the second round of the Patriot Cup -- another goal for us. And there were just some small things where we were proud of our team and individuals who rose to the occasion as well."

The Presidents lost seven seniors to graduation since their season came to a close. They include: captain Aisling Kelly, captain Alyssa Ryan, captain Jackie Kane, Kayleigh Caldwell, Megan MacNeil, Erin O'Callaghan, and Darby Boudreau.

Monaco said they played an important role in the program's success this season.

"They're a great group of girls who worked hard every day. I couldn't have asked for them to do more. They put in a great effort. They were a good group of leaders for the younger girls to look up to."

18 Quincy Cyclists Riding In Pan-Mass Challenge

More than 6,000 riders, including 18 Quincy participants, will take part in the Pan-Mass Challenge (PMC) Aug. 7 and 8, a two-day 211-mile bike-a-thon across Massachusetts, with the goal of raising $52 million for cancer research and patient care at Dana-Farber Cancer Institute (Dana-Farber).

The 18 riders from Quincy are:

Courtney Boli, Kyle Cataldo, Tyler Coene, Roberta Colby, Robin Franceschini, Thomas Herlihy, Lauren Lambert, Siobhan Licudine, Ross Mair, Patrick McDermott, Valerie Murphy, Elliot Rizzo, William Serpico, Chrissy Shah, Heather Sullivan, Terry Sullivan, Betty McCallion and Nathaniel Moore.

The PMC is the nation's single most successful athletic fundraiser, donating 100 percent of every rider-raised dollar to Dana-Farber as its largest single contributor, accounting for 64 percent of its Jimmy Fund's annual revenue. For the first time since 2019, more than 6,000 riders from 47 states and 11 countries will once again hit the road together during the first weekend of August with the common goal of making an impact in the fight against cancer. In 2020, the PMC raised an impressive $50 million through its summer-long Reimagined campaign, bringing its 41-year contribution to $767 million.

Nunziato is enrolled in the mechanical engineering/mechatronics concentration program.

"We couldn't be more excited to bring our passionate PMC riders, volunteers, donors and sponsors back together in person for PMC Ride Weekend this year," said Billy Starr, founder and executive director of the PMC. "With fully supported routes and Reimagined options, everyone can customize their PMC experience to join us in the fight against cancer. Cancer doesn't stop for anything, even a global pandemic, and funding for research, treatment and care is as critical as ever."

PMC 2021 will include 16 routes – from 25 to 211 miles – designed to cater to all levels of cycling and fundraising ability, including Reimagined options for those who prefer to complete their PMC ride on their own. Most participate in honor of a family member or friend fighting cancer and more than 950 riders and volunteers are cancer survivors or current patients, considered Living Proof of the PMC mission. More than 150 Dana-Farber employees are committed to the cause as riders and volunteers as well, in some cases to fund their own cancer research.

Registration for PMC 2021 is open through June 30. Join in the fight against cancer by registering for one of the following featured routes still available:

• 25 & 50-Mile Routes (1-Day 25 or 50 Miles; Sunday, Aug. 8):

o Starting and finishing in either Wellesley or Foxboro, these Sunday routes are perfect single day options for those passionate about giving back.

• Wellesley Century Ride (1-Day, 100 Miles; Sunday, Aug. 8):

o New this year, the Wellesley Century route is a popular option for riders looking to challenge their endurance in a single day format while making an impact in the fight against cancer.

• Reimagined Ride (Rider's Choice Mileage/Timing):

o PMC Reimagined riders can ride wherever and whenever they want – except for the PMC routes on PMC weekend. This option is intended to provide flexibility for those that want to contribute to the fight against cancer without specific time or mileage constraints.

The PMC is presented by the Red Sox Foundation. To make a financial contribution to a rider from your town or to register as a rider, visit www.pmc.org, or call (800) WE-CYCLE. Connect with #PMC2021 on Facebook, Twitter, Instagram and LinkedIn.

Sheriff's Office Recognizes Tyler Forgeron As Norfolk County Hero

Norfolk County Sheriff Patrick McDermott announces Tyler Forgeron of Walpole, also known as "Tyler Can," has been awarded the Norfolk County Heroes Award.

During the pandemic and COVID-19 lockdown, Tyler took the initiative to start collecting bottles and cans to raise money for local charities and non-profits, raising over $15,000 in the process.

Norfolk County Sheriff Patrick McDermott praised Tyler's drive and generosity. "Many of us understandably felt a little helpless when the COVID-19 pandemic first struck, but Tyler refused to surrender to that feeling," he said. "By channeling that energy into helping his community and those in need, Tyler has shown us that each person can make a difference. We should all follow Tyler's example."

Since he began collecting bottles and cans to raise money at the beginning of the pandemic, Tyler has been able to make donations to numerous charitable organizations and non-profits, including Lifeworks, Above the Clouds, Breaking Bread, St. Vincent De Paul, the Walpole Community Food Pantry, the Multicultural Book Initiative, The Jimmy

TYLER FORGERON

Fund, and more.

"I love helping out other charities and the community, along with others in need," Tyler said. "I feel like I am a superhero when it comes to helping out charities by collecting bottles and cans and redeeming them for different charities."

Tyler will be presented with a citation from Sheriff McDermott at a ceremony to be held in July alongside other recipients of the Norfolk County Heroes Award. He will also be featured on the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office website's Norfolk County Heroes page. The Norfolk County Sheriff's Office will also be organizing an employee bottle and can drive on behalf of Tyler.

The Norfolk County Heroes program was created earlier this year to recognize acts of heroism, community building, and public service by residents of Norfolk County. To nominate someone for the Norfolk County Heroes Award, visit <https://www.norfolksheriff.com/norfolkcountyheroes>.

OBITUARIES

James P. McGuire

Funeral services for James P. McGuire of Weymouth and Harwich were held Wednesday in Quincy Point Congregational Church.

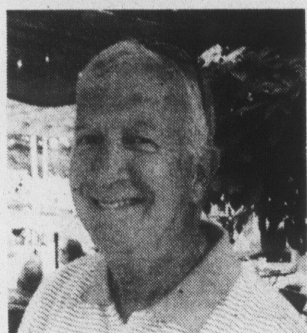

Mr. McGuire died suddenly on June 16, surrounded by his loving family.

He was the son of the late James and Carol (Frey) McGuire of Quincy Point.

Born in Quincy on May 27, 1952, Mr. McGuire graduated from Quincy High School in 1970 and Babson College in 1974. He enjoyed his days playing soccer at both schools and because of his leadership abilities, he was the captain of both teams. Early on, Mr. McGuire worked for the Shawmut Bank, but knew in his heart his true calling was to work with children, so he earned his Master's Degree in education at Eastern Nazarene College.

Mr. McGuire impacted the lives of so many throughout his life. His career in education began at Broad Meadows Middle School (a junior high at the time) as a math teacher, and in those hallways, he met the love of his life, Cookie. Their journey can best be defined in one word, togetherness. Rarely did you see one without the other. Mr. McGuire returned briefly to Babson College as the associate director of admissions, but when given the opportunity, he did not hesitate to accept a math position at North Quincy High School. Soon after, he began his career in administration. Mr. McGuire was the assistant principal at Broad Meadows Middle School and later at Sterling Middle School, only to return to his roots as principal at Point Webster Middle School until his retirement in 2013. He considered his staff and students his second family.

Mr. McGuire was an avid sports fan and faithfully followed the New England Patriots, Bruins, Red Sox, Celtics, and if a soccer game was televised, he was glued to the TV. He coached soccer at Quincy High School, and later at North Quincy High School. His love of coaching continued in the town of Weymouth where he coached soccer, hockey, and baseball youth teams.

A wonderful husband and father, his children, Philip and Stacey, were the lights of his life. He was proud of their academic achievements, their athletic accomplishments and, most importantly, the outstanding individuals they have become. He was their biggest fan and never missed any of their high school games, and he made a point of attending many of Phil's college soccer games. Mr. McGuire treasured his time being Papa to Kendall and Colin, and admired and loved Phil's wife, Jen and her entire family. A humble man, he appreciated the simple things in life and after retirement loved spending memorable times with his family in Harwich on Cape Cod. He was admired and respected by his family, friends, colleagues, and students. He will be deeply missed by all who had the honor of knowing him.

Mrs. Steeves died peacefully and surrounded by family at her home on March 27.

Born in Laconia, NH, she was a daughter of the late Irene Martel and Yvonne (Seigny). She rarely missed a game on television or an opportunity to tell you what one or another of the teams was doing wrong and how it could be corrected. One of the greatest joys of her life was the Red Sox World Series victory in 2004 when her hooting and hollering from her living room during the late night finish was later reported to have been heard from the International Space Station. At the time of her death, Mrs. Steeves remained disappointed in Tom Brady's tragic decision to leave the Patriots.

Artist Allegra Murray Featured In MPL Exhibit "Another Story"

From July 1 - 31, the Milton Public Library will host a local artist named Allegra Murray in an exhibit titled "Another Story."

This talented artist creates flowers from various papers, all sourced within the community. These three-dimensional pieces are very colorful and cool, incorporating lots of different hues and often with written words interwoven into the beautiful images. Each piece has a theme of its own to include graphics like musical notes or a local map of Milton streets, and the fun list of embellishments goes on to create a very enjoyable and eclectic exhibit.

The artist started creating paper flowers in 2017 when she made book page flower centerpieces for a Jane Austen-themed tea at our library. Since that time her plants and flowers have been featured in local publications such as The Patriot Ledger, South Shore Home, and more. Her sculptures were also included in several exhibits such as the Scituate Arts Association's "Annual Juried Show" and the Art Center East's "In Bloom" display at which her piece called "Hope Blooms 2021" was awarded honorable mention. She is originally from Long Island, NY and resides in Milton, MA with her husband and two sons. She has a Bachelor of Music degree from Manhattan School of Music and a Master of Science in Arts Administration from Boston University.

Here is what Allegra says about her work: "When a reader thinks of a favorite book, the mind goes to the complex characters, the unforgettable settings, or the timeless story woven throughout the pages. Once the last page has been read, the book is closed and it is placed back on the shelf where it remains until it is taken out again. Through my exhibit, "Another Story," I wish to celebrate the pages within the book which are so often hidden away when not being read. The used book pages, having been transformed into beautiful plants and flowers, bloom with the names, places, and quotes that rekindle the memory of a beloved tome."

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Expect some surprises in what you thought was one of your typically well-planned schedules. Deal with them, and then enjoy some lighthearted entertainment.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Your usually generous self is overshadowed by your equally strong suspicious nature. You might be judging things too harshly. Keep an open mind.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Love and romance dominate the week. Married Aquarians enjoy domestic harmony, while singles could soon be welcoming overtures from loving Leos.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) An old health problem recurs, but it is soon dealt with, leaving you eager to get back into the swing of things. A favorable travel period starts this week.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have an independent spirit that resists being told what to do. But you're also wise enough to appreciate good advice.

HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD -- How long should someone charged with the alleged sexual assault of 20 young men be ostracized? Kevin Spacey -- best supporting actor Oscar winner (for "The Usual Suspects" 1995) and best actor Oscar (for "American Beauty," 1999) -- watched his world crash down in 2017 when actor Anthony Rapp alleged Spacey made sexual advances toward him when he was 14 years old. When 15 other young men came forward claiming similar abuse, filming was suspended of the fifth season of "House of Cards," and Spacey was removed as star and executive producer. He also was replaced by the late Christopher Plummer in "All the Money in the World," for which Plummer received an Oscar nomination.

The news that Spacey has been signed to do a cameo, opposite Vanessa Redgrave and Franco Nero (best known as Lancelot in "Camelot"), who also is directing the Italian film "L'uomo Che Disegno Dio" ("The Man Who Drew God"), sent shock waves through the Hollywood community. It's furious that Franco Nero has given Spacey a film when his blacklist time was definitely NOT up!

On a happier note: Oscar nominee Timothee Chalamet will play a young Willy Wonka (Gene Wilder was an older Wonka in the 1971 "Willy Wonka") and will unveil his singing pipes in the film. Willy Wonka is a staple in casinos, where the musical and magical slot machines entertain so many.

Also unveiling her singing pipes is "Will & Grace" Emmy winner Debra Messing, who, although she starred in 2012's 32-episode musical series "Smash" (about Marilyn Monroe), didn't sing much. She's been set to star for Netflix in "13: The Musical," based on the Broadway musical that ran from 2008-09 and served as the debut vehicle for singer Ariana Grande and actress Elizabeth Gillies.

Yet another comeback story is Lindsay Lohan, getting an assist from Netflix, which has named her to star in an as-yet-untitled holiday rom-com being directed by Janeen Damian, wife of former "The Young and the Restless" soap star Michael Damian, who co-wrote the script with her and has recently directed two films for the Hallmark Channel.

The richest man in the world, Amazon founder Jeff Bezos, has purchased MGM (formerly the greatest movie studio ever) for $8.45 billion. Among the properties he now owns are "007" James Bond, "Thelma & Louise," "Raging Bull" and "The Handmaid's Tale," as well as the reality show "The Apprentice," which gives him access to all of the show's outtakes, including off-color remarks by Donald Trump, the show's host for 14 years. Why would THE richest man in world want to own a bankrupt movie company? There's a lot more to this story. MGM may now stand for My Goodness Me!

KOVELS Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Shake Hands With Uncle Sam --- How national symbols are chosen is often a mystery. Uncle Sam is not our oldest symbol. There were two other figures that represented our budding country during the American Revolution. They were Yankee Doodle, the British slang name for the disheveled Colonial soldiers inspired by the song, and Brother Jonathan, a smart, rural man who was the hero in cartoons and stories from 1771 to 1783. They were pictured as tall, thin men with beards.

Legend says Uncle Sam was a nickname inspired by the initials U.S. stamped on barrels of beef for the Army during the War of 1812 to show they were government property. That led to the joke that they belonged to "Uncle Sam." In the 1870s, Thomas Nast began depicting Uncle Sam in cartoons and posters, but the bearded figure dressed in red, white and blue didn't become an official symbol until 1961. He is now seen on labels, machines, posters, statues and political signs.

Q: I love old games, and I recently saw a picture of an old board game called "Bulls and Bears -- The Great Wall St. Game." I have never heard of this game and was curious about its history and value. Can you help?

A: "Bulls and Bears -- The Great Wall St. Game" was patented in 1883 by the McLoughlin Bros. The box cover had a lithographed picture of a dapper-looking, cane-holding bull talking with an equally well-dressed bear. Bulls and bears are Wall Street symbols. A bull market refers to a market on the rise; a bear market is one declining. Inside the game was a folding board with Gilded Age stock market characters Jay Gould, Cornelius Vanderbilt and Horace Greeley. There also was a spinning board, play money, contracts and an instruction booklet. A "Bull and Bears" vintage game recently sold at auction for $20,000. It was the top seller in the toy sale that included 450 lots.

Q: I'm really enjoying the new comedy "Hacks" on HBO Max. It's yet another brilliant performance by Jean Smart, whom I've watched since her "Designing Women" days. Has she ever won an Emmy or Oscar? She certainly deserves one. -- P.W.

A: Jean Smart, who will turn 70 this year, was best known for playing Charlene on the hit sitcom "Designing Women" in the late 1980s. Shortly after it ended, she took a big dramatic leap and wowed critics in the TV biopic "Overkill: The Aileen Wuornos Story." Adept at both comedy and drama, she easily switched genres, most notably as a Mrs. Robinson type in "The Brady Bunch Movie" and later as the head of a crime syndicate in the TV series "Fargo."

In "Hacks," Smart plays a struggling comic who reluctantly hires a young writer, played by newcomer Hannah Einbinder, to spice up her act. Einbinder is the daughter of "Saturday Night Live" alum Laraine Newman. As for Smart's fireplace mantle at home, it has room for some more Emmys after previous wins as Outstanding Guest Actress on the sitcom "Frasier" and Outstanding Supporting Actress in the comedy series "Samantha Who?," which starred Christina Applegate. "Hacks" is a real showcase for her talent, so don't be surprised if her agent is already telling her to prepare her acceptance speech.

Q: I'm excited about the "reboot" of the series "Dexter." It had such an unsatisfying finale, so hopefully they'll rectify that. I would love it if Dexter's wife Rita could come back, but I guess that's not possible. -- G.T.

A: Even though it's been over a decade since Julie Benz, who played Rita, departed "Dexter," she says fans still approach her about her angelic character, and jokes that in real life, she's not that nice. She also said in an interview with TV-Line.com that even though "Dexter has moved way past Rita," she would reprise the character "in a heartbeat if they asked."

Her latest role was a meaty one and the polar opposite of Rita. She starred in the recent Lifetime movie "Secrets of a Gold Digger Killer," which was based on the true-crime tale of Celeste Beard. "Dexter" returns to Showtime this fall with Michael C. Hall and Clancy Brown ("SpongeBob SquarePants"). It reportedly will be set in upstate New York instead of Miami.

Q: I was really sad to read that Ned Beatty died. Had he acted in recent years? -- T.T.

A: Ned Beatty started out as a theater actor, but his first film role was a memorable one, in "Deliverance." A few years later he was nominated for an Oscar in the Best Supporting Actor category for "Network." His television career was just as impressive with notable parts on classics like "The Rockford Files," "Highway to Heaven" and "Homicide: Life on the Street." He also endeared himself to both children and adults as the purple bear Lotso in "Toy Story 3."

Beatty passed peacefully in his sleep at home at the age of 83.

Pets Shell-Shocked by Nightly Fireworks

DEAR PAW'S CORNER: What is with the constant setting off of loud fireworks almost every night for the past year? My two dogs are so stressed out that they are sleeping with me at night. -- Larry H., via email

DEAR LARRY: I experienced similar nightly fireworks throughout the pandemic. There are many theories as to why fireworks were so popular, but I prefer to go with the most obvious: Some people had little else to do, and no regard for their neighbors. My pets are not too fazed by the occasional crackle of firecrackers, which still goes on here even though the pandemic restrictions are mostly lifted. But some of our neighbors had much bigger fireworks and enjoyed setting them off around midnight or later, with no warning. My pets came flying into the bedroom when these were set off. As a pet owner, it's frustrating to see our companions suffer from someone else's carelessness. Even worse, authorities haven't seemed interested in enforcing noise or fireworks regulations. As we head into the Fourth of July weekend, plan ahead to make things easier for your pets. Create a safe space for your dogs to go to when fireworks go off. Some dogs absolutely need this and can't be comforted by a hug or treats. A friend of mine created a little den in the corner of her mudroom using scrap plywood, putting bedding and old clothes inside so her giant mutt "Ollie" can hide from loud noises. Talk to your dogs' vet as well about medication to keep them calmer through the holiday, which may help them better deal with the trauma caused by fireworks.

Queen Bees (PG-13) — If it took you 20 years to finally get over the anxiety of high school cliques, "Queen Bees" shows that it all comes back again later in life. Ellen Burstyn plays Helen, a silver single moving into a senior living community. There she encounters all the same personality conflicts from her school days as she tries to navigate the social strata of Pine Grove. "They're like mean girls, but with medical alert bracelets," Helen quips. Jane Curtin, Loretta Devine and Ann-Margaret round out the cool girls' table, with Christopher Lloyd and James Caan providing comedic support and romantic interest. (Theaters and Prime Video)

Luca (PG) — Luca and Alberto are two young boys finding adventure on the 1950s Italian Riviera, making new friends and living their best lives. The twist? They're not actually human boys, but underwater sea creatures who become humanlike when they rise above the sea's surface. While concealing their secret in lots of near-miss situations, the boys ride Vespa scooters and eat gelatos, practicing their Italian accents with a few choice phrases. Pixar Studios continues to amaze and delight with its visuals, once again surpassing its own levels of excellence in animation. (Disney+)

Skyfall (PG-13) — Once again delivering exquisite cinematography of exotic locales, this 2012 film is the third installment in Daniel Craig's reign as James Bond. With 007 returning to M16 after mission failure and subsequent personal disappearance, Bond rises like the phoenix to take on one of the creepiest villains ever, expertly portrayed by Javier Bardem. The movie's stunning conclusion is explosive and a bit overly dramatic, but ties together Bond's past with his present, ushering in a shocking change to the M16 organization. (New to Paramount+)

Bo Burnham: Inside (NR) — It is a bit of a misnomer to call this a comedy special because it's not your typical guy-onstage-telling-jokes presentation. Performed without an audience and entirely inside comedian/musician Bo Burnham's apartment over the full year of 2020, "Inside" is 87 minutes of devilishly original songs and commentary covering subjects from white privilege to labor exploitation and self-deprecation. Despite the heavy topics, it IS hysterically funny, and exceptionally clever. With laser lights and voice modulators, Burnham is self-admittedly a little all over the place, but the genius that emerged from his own mental struggles is well worth a watch — but definitely not for the kids. (Netflix)

Scene from "Luca"

Miss Juneteenth (NR) — When a former pageant winner sees her teenage daughter at a crossroads in life, she encourages her to enter the same scholarship pageant that she won years earlier. With a full ride to a Historically Black College as the prize for the winner of Miss Juneteenth, mom Turquoise has high hopes of daughter Kai making more of her life than she herself was able to accomplish. Nicole Beharie is wonderful as the ever-supportive but always firm mother to newcomer Alexis Chikaeze in this SXSW Film Festival award-winner. (Theaters/video on demand)

Opening lead — three of clubs.

Playing hastily in bridge is analogous, in many ways, to the ancient proverb about marrying in haste and repenting at leisure. Today's deal provides a case in point.

Assume you're in three notrump and West leads a club. Dummy's six holds the first trick, and you apparently have nine sure tricks consisting of a spade, a heart, four diamonds and three clubs.

Lulled by this false sense of security into thinking that it's all over but the shouting, you try for an overtrick by taking a heart finesse at trick two, losing the queen to the king.

West returns the ten of hearts, and about this time it begins to dawn on you that there's some doubt about making nine tricks. The four diamond tricks you counted at the start are much easier to count than to cash. If you take the K-J, there will be no way to reach dummy's A-Q, while if you cash the king and then overtake the jack with the queen, you will make only three diamond tricks unless the ten falls. (In the actual deal it doesn't, so you finish down one.)

To make matters worse, you now realize where you went wrong. The fault goes back to trick one, when you won the club lead with dummy's six and should have won with the ace! You could then have played the king of clubs, cashed the K-J of diamonds and led another club toward dummy's J-9. Whether West took his queen or not, the jack of clubs would be an entry to the A-Q of diamonds, and nine tricks would be assured.

Obviously, it's clear in retrospect that winning the opening club lead with the ace is correct, but you must give yourself enough time to think of it. If you play too hastily at trick one and allow dummy's six to win, you will, as the proverb says, have lots of time later to repent at your leisure.

C. Diff Tricky To Treat, But Rarely Terminal

DEAR DR. ROACH: In December, I developed an abscess in my jaw from food getting caught in my tooth. I went to see a local dentist who prescribed clindamycin and metronidazole. I came down with a case of C. difficile. I have since found evidence that multiple antibiotics and clindamycin are causes of C. diff.

I am getting mixed messages about my prognosis. Some medical people are telling me it's not a big deal and to just wash my hands a lot. My primary physician, however, gave me the impression that this is basically a terminal diagnosis.

She told me how sorry she was and that I had been a very healthy person but am not any longer. She told me that it will most likely recur, and every time it does it will be more difficult to treat until I become antibiotic resistant, and that people die from it. She also told me that she would set me up for the standard yearly appointment, but that I should come see her whenever I need to.

I am paranoid about what my future holds and what, if anything, I can do. I would like your opinion of this situation. Any guidance you can give me would be greatly appreciated. —Anon.

ANSWER: Clostridium difficile ("C. diff") infections are common but can be serious. As you correctly note, many antibiotics are associated with the acquisition of symptomatic C. diff infections, and although clindamycin is the best known, other antibiotics (quinolones, amoxicillin and related penicillins) are actually more common. The antibiotics kill off large numbers of healthy bacteria, allowing the unhealthy C. diff to take over.

The cardinal symptom of C. diff is watery diarrhea, at least three loose stools in 24 hours. Abdominal pain and cramping, nausea and poor appetite are common. Fever is less common.

Symptoms can start during antibiotic treatment or up to a month after completing antibiotics.

Treatment is stopping the antibiotic if possible and if still being given. Antibiotic treatment against C. diff is with the newer drug fidaxomicin or with oral vancomycin; unfortunately, fidaxomicin is ridiculously expensive -- a course of fidaxomicin is $3,000 via goodrx.com in the U.S. at the time of writing. A course of oral vancomycin costs much less, often less than $200 through the same website. If neither of these is available, metronidazole is a less-expensive alternative.

Fidaxomicin has the lowest risk of recurrence of the infection, and many experts will reserve it for a person who has recurred after oral vancomycin. For the unusual person who continues to recur after antibiotic treatment, fecal microbiota transplants (processed from stool of healthy donors) have been safe and effective.

I am disturbed that you got the impression that C. diff is a terminal diagnosis. Although in rare cases, hospitalized patients can get so sick that they can die from C. diff, this would be very unusual in less severe disease, as in someone who is able to go home from the hospital.

Handwashing is necessary to reduce infection to others. Avoiding drugs like Prilosec that suppress acid can help prevent recurrences. Finally, probiotics (live healthy bacteria) may be of use in reducing infection and recurrence.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.cornell.edu.

Then in his merciful eyes it will become your favor, not mine. Amen. Say this prayer for 3 days, promise publication and favor will be granted, no matter how impossible. Never known to fail. S.C.

Prayer to the Blessed Virgin
(Never known to fail!)
 Oh, most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein, you are my mother. Oh Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech thee from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (three times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (three times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days and then you must publish and it will be granted to you.
 A.O.S. 6/24

Happy 75th Birthday on June 26th
